CHINESE in Swatow attack foreigners in the hotels and swarm on board British ships. Sailors from His Majesty's cruiser Bluebell drive off the mob.

Observant Britishers believe Japan contemplates war with Russia, as a preliminary to annexing considerable Chinese territory.

That is news from the East.

RUSSIA assures Britain, on her Bolshevik word of honor, that she isn't stirring up trouble in China, and seeks to prevent a break with the British.

AUSTRALIA fears trouble with Japan, her nearest, powerful, ever-menacing neighbor.

That is a complicated situation in the East, and Senator Borah is wise in advising Uncle Sam to keep out of it.

FRANCE WILL soon send commissioners here, about her debt. Italy makes clear her earnest desire to pay. The business of the United States is to do all that can be done in a reassuring way to prevent a further drop in French and Italian currency. There is no profit in bankrupting your debtor.

MRS. ROSE KELLAHER had eight children, was fifty-five years old, and decided that she ought to enjoy life. She bought a permanent wave, took singing and dancing lessons, drew out her savings, bought a motor car.

Mr. Kellaher, sixty-nine, wants to divorce her. "I also have had eight children," says he, "yet I behave myself."

Many ladies of fifty-five, and over and under, will sympathize with Mrs. Kellaher. Many husbands of sixty-nine will sympathize with Mr. Kellaher and, doing so, will be just as foolish as he.

THE BEST THING a woman can do with her savings at fifty-five, when she has eight children to look after her—as they will do if they are worth a cent—is to buy herself a permanent wave, take any kind of lessons she wants, and, above all, buy an automobile.

BRITISH movie men, in despair, unable to compete even faintly with American films, propose to build a gigantic national studio to cost ten millions. They would buy up theatres to keep American films out, and, if necessary, a government subsidy for British moving pictures would be demanded. The NEED is there, but not the remedy.

YOU CANNOT subsidize the British climate, or find anywhere on earth a duplicate of California's climate, all year round. As Paris rules fashion, so California rules moving pictures. The industry is there and will stay there.

LIGHT EARTHQUAKE shocks in Maine, and nobody says, "I'll never go to Maine." On one day this week ten thousand Americans sailed for Europe, to leave many million dollars behind them. Thousands of them will go to Italy. They won't stay away, although within twenty-five years earthquakes in Italy have killed more people by 1,000

Edwards on Stand in Crabtree Case

CAMBRIDGE PACKED AT CELEBRATION

MRS. BLANKENBURG COLLAPSES WHEN EDWARDS TESTIFIES

Mrs. Ida Manning Blankenburg of Tulsa, Okla., principal claimant to the $3,000,000 fortune of the late Lotta Crabtree, broke into tears today while Major-General Clarence R. Edwards was testifying in the Crabtree case in Suffolk Superior Court.

It was when the famous wartime commander of the Y.D. produced a picture of a baby.

He said that it was his understanding, as administrator of the Crabtree estate, that it was the picture of Lotta herself at three years old.

SHENANDOAH TO GIVE 'SALUTE' TO COOLIDGE

Lakehurst, N. J., July 3 (A.P.)—The dirigible Shenandoah left the naval air station at 9:15 on her flight to Bar Harbor, Me.

The ship headed direct for Providence, R. I., and was in charge of Commander Lansdowne.

The itinerary, in addition to Providence, included Boston, Cambridge, Lawrence and nearby cities in Massachusetts, Portsmouth, N. H., Portland and Bar Harbor, Me.

Plans to sail over Swampscott were abandoned and Albert Starr, parachute jumper, was not aboard when the ship was cut loose from her mast.

Last week Governor Silzer asked permission to make the trip aboard the ship, but the dirigible sailed without him, carrying forty men and officers, three observation officers and a photographer.

TWO MEN INJURED AS AUTO HITS L CAR

Two men were hurt and a dozen other persons were shaken and startled today in a collision between an automobile and a street car at G and East Eighth streets, South Boston.

The injured men are Henry Villias of Harvest terrace and John O'Day, No. 93 F street, South Boston.

They were riding in the automobile, which got beyond control on G stret hill. The men were taken to the Carney Hospital. Their injuries were not serious. None of the passengers were injured, but most of them were frightened.

SPAIN'S ROYAL BABY HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Madrid, July 3 (I.N.S.).—The Infante Fernando, heir to the Spanish throne, was under a physician's care at the Royal Palace this afternoon for injuries in a dangerous automobile crash earlier today. Fortunately the young Prince's injuries were not serious—a cut on the cheek and a bruised leg.

The royal automobile collided with a loaded auto bus, wrecking the lighter car completely. The passengers of the bus were thrown to the ground, but none was injured.

Under smiling skies, a great horde of eager spectators poured into the historic city of Cambridge today for the observance of the 150th anniversary of the assumption of command of the Continental army by General Washington.

When the official program opened at 10:30 with patriotic airs on the chimes of Christ Church, it was estimated that from 200,000 to 300,000 natives and visitors packed the streets, with more on the way.

Thousands arrived in automobiles, which were parked in outlying sections, but the great majority traveled on street cars, the Elevated providing extra service on the tube trains.

MRS. COOLIDGE BARELY ESCAPES MOTORCYCLE

Swampscott, July 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. Coolidge escapes being run down by a motorcycle early today during a walk about Swampscott, a leap to the side of the road saving her. Four members of the State constabulary on motorcycles turned into a lane behind her, driving at a fast clip. A yell by James Haley, her secret service man, gave Mrs. Coolidge her only warning.

300,000 THRONG CAMBRIDGE TO WITNESS TODAY'S CELEBRATION

PRESIDENT AT HEAD OF PARADE

All were pervaded with the holiday spirit, and the city itself, demurely gay befitting its years, was aflutter with innumerable flags and bunting.

Massachusetts avenue, the famous artery to the north, blazed with color, from Harvard bridge, where the big parade starts, to beyond the Common, where the exercises, featured by an address by President Coolidge, are to take place.

WHERE WASHINGTON PRAYED.

By nine o'clock, Christ Church, hallowed by years and sanctified by historic associations, was filled to capacity, the early arrivals inspecting with interest the replica of the pew used by Washington when he worshipped there in 1775.

At 10:30, when the chimes began to ring out their stirring strains, every seat was taken and a crowd was standing in the rear of the church when Bishop William Lawrence began to preach.

His sermon was brief, lasting for but fifteen minutes, and was followed by more airs on the chimes.

SEE THE FIRST FLAG.

Meantime others in the huge throng inspected the flag flying from the Wadsworth house, which few would have recognized without the identifying placard.

It was the "Grand Union Flag," the emblem adopted by Washington 150 years ago, as the banner under which his stout-hearted soldiers were to wrest a new nation from the grasp of the British Empire. It remained the official emblem until Betsy Ross, in an inspired moment, created the Stars and Stripes.

Surging restlessly about the streets, the crowd put in the time admiring the decorations, and taking up vantage points from which to watch the parade in which President and Mrs. Coolidge are to ride.

The presence of President and Mrs. Coolidge in the big celebration parade which will occur this afternoon, and later at exercises on the Cambridge Common, where the President will speak, is the outstanding feature of a day's program that is replete with interest.

AUTOS PARKED FAR AWAY.

It is the first appearance of President and Mrs. Coolidge in a public affair in Massachusetts since the former Governor of the Bay State became the chief executive of the Nation and countless thousands have journeyed long distances today to pay tribute to the sturdy Massachusetts leader of the Twentieth Century as well as to honor the memory of the "Father of His Country."

The various parade units were assembled along the Charles River about noon. The mayors from a score of Massachusetts cities are listed among the honor guests in the line of march, while all told more than 10,000 marchers were to follow the route, starting at the Cambridge end of the Harvard bridge.

G. A. R. HEAD IN PARADE.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge were expected to arrive along Memorial drive at 1:45. Mayor Quinn of Cambridge was to occupy the White House automobile along with the President and his wife, and this car will have the place of honor at the head of the parade. A salute of 21 guns fired by Battery A, 101st Field Artillery, M. N. G., was to announce to the waiting thousands that the President had arrived in Cambridge.

Another honor guest in the line of march is Dr. Louis F. Arensberg, 92 year old National commander of the Grand Army of the Republic.

TWENTY-ONE BANDS IN LINE.

Of the 10,000 marchers about half are military and naval units, while twenty-one bands will be in line.

When the President reaches the reviewing stand on Cambridge Common he will leave his car and will review the parade. Following the review, the marchers will be drawn up on the Common, and President Coolidge will move to the speaker's stand, a short distance away.

The stand has been fitted with amplifiers and it is estimated that 100,000 persons will be able to hear the President's address. But this throng will be but a fraction of the unseen multitude in all parts of the United States that will hear the Presidential address as it is broadcast on the radio from the stations of a dozen cities.

The President and his party will return to Swampscott immediately following the address.

Before the speech, however, the Chief Executive will witness a colorful pageant, which will recount as faithfully as possible, the scene of 150 years ago, when Washington took over the command of the Continental forces. Forty Massachusetts women who will take part in this pageant, will wear the dresses worn by their ancestresses a century and a half ago.

Lieutenant-Colonel Melvin H. Leonard of the 101st Engineers will take the part of Washington and Captain Robert R. Langley of the same regiment will represent General Artemas Ward.

Among the Cambridge women who will take part will be Mrs. William G. Farlow, who will portray an ancestor, Mrs. John Hancock; Miss Ethel Bumstead, as her ancestor, Dorothy Hancock Gardner; Mrs. C. J. Eisenhuske, as an ancestor; Mrs. Joseph McKean of Fay House; Mrs. Joseph Lovejoy, as Mrs. Joshua Walker of Woburn and Bunker Hill; Mrs. George G. Forbes, as Mrs. William Prescott, wife of Col. Prescott of Bunker Hill, and Mrs. George A. Kimball, as Mrs. Jeremiah Kimball of Cambridge.

Altogether more than 350 men will take part in the pageant.

POLICE REGULATIONS.

Following the pageant, 300 Cambridge school children, seated at one side of the presidential party, will sing patriotic songs, after which the President will speak.

One of the features of the celebration will be the appearance of the giant dirigible Shenandoah, which will fly low over Cambridge immediately upon its arrival from Lakehurst, N. J.

During his stay in Cambridge, President Coolidge will have as his civilian aide Stoughton Bell of Brattle street, Cambridge.

The police regulations for the day prohibit traffic on Massachusetts avenue from Memorial drive to Everett street, the route of the parade, from 1:45 p. m. until 5 p. m. Emergency stations have been established at frequent places along the route, a doctor being in attendance at each station.

Between 1 p. m. and 4:30 p. m. street car traffic will be discontinued both on Massachusetts avenue between points mentioned and on Main street between Central to Kendall squares. The Boston Elevated requests passengers to use the subway.

ENACTING THE HISTORIC SCENE OF 150 YEARS AGO

When Major-General Artemas Ward passed his command of the American army to George Washington, beneath the famous elm in what is now Cambridge Common, Lieutenant-Colonel Melvin H. Leonard is depicted as Washington, taking the sword from Ward, whose part is taken by Captain Robert R. Lingley.

REV. M. J. DOODY OF CAMBRIDGE IS DEAD

Rev. Michael J. Doody, P. R., for more than a quarter of a century rector of St. Mary's of the Annunciation Church in Cambridgeport, died in the parish rectory early today, following a sudden heart attack. Around the bed of the beloved pastor of St. Mary's when he passed away were the four curates who worked with him and Dr. Francis R. Barnes of No. 67 Brattle street, his attending physician.

The death of Father Doody came as a shock to members of his parish. He was taken seriously ill a few months ago and his death was then expected momentarily. He was brought to Cambridge Municipal Hospital, from which he was later discharged completely recovered.

GEN. EDWARDS IS CALLED TO TESTIFY

Former YD Leader Summoned as Witness in Crabtree Will Fight

Mrs. Blankenburg, who makes the claim that she is Lotta Crabtree's daughter, and was unacknowledged during the life of the actress because the latter wanted the world to believe her a spinster, began to cry softly as she sat in the spectators' benches.

A second later she arose and left the courtroom, still crying. When she reached an ante room she broke down completely and was cared for by sympathetic women friends.

The many lawyers in the case maneuvered for some time concerning the picture introduced by General Edwards, indicating that they considered it of much significance.

The former Y. D. head, called as a witnesses by counsel for Mrs. Blankenburg, was brisk and businesslike on the stand. He began his testimony as Judge Prest declared court opened.

John William Crabtree, sixty-six years old, of Lincoln, Neb., testified that Lotta Crabtree, the actress, brought a baby girl to his father's house in Crabtree Ford, Illinois, in the Spring of 1878. The baby was 8 or 9 months old.

"She called the baby Ida, and said, "This is my baby girl,'" testified Crabtree. He did not explain his relationship to Lotta Crabtree.

John W. Crabtree is one of the family in which Mrs. Blankenburg claims she was brought up. The attorneys for the estate have intimated that they will admit that she was reared with the family but contend she was born a daughter of that family.

He is the brother of Elizabeth Brown who in a deposition read at an earlier hearing in the will contest stated that a little girl named Ida appeared mysteriously at Crabtree Ford when eight or nine months old and that this same Ida was the present Mrs. Blankenburg.

The witness said he had a sister named Ida Crabtree and that she was considerably younger than himself, but she died, he said, when a few months old.

"I was picking up my tools one day, when I was about twenty years old, when I first saw Lotta Crabtree," said Crabtree. "I first noticed a span of horses tied to the fence, and then I saw Lotta.

"She brought a baby in her arms to my father and mother and said her name was Ida. She wanted us to bring up the child, and before leaving she handed me $25 and told me to use it for her baby. Ida girl, in regard to getting clothes and so on.

ASKED ABOUT BABY.

"I met Lotta again in Muscatine, Iowa, two or three weeks afterward. We ate dinner together at the Eastern House, and she wanted to know how her baby, Ida, was and I told her she was getting along fine. She again gave me $25, and as always with money she gave me, I spent it on Ida.

"Next, I met Lotta in Kansas City, where I was working decorating a playhouse. We ate dinner together at the Coates House. 'How is my baby girl getting along?' Lotta asked, and I told her she was growing up fast.

"That time she gave me $50. She told me to use it for her baby, to buy clothes and to send her to school when she got old enough. Next time I met her at LaCrosse, Wis., where I was decorating another playhouse. She gave me $100 or a little more, perhaps, and told me to see that the girl had the best of clothes that money could buy and education too, and to buy her a horse if she wanted one.

"When Ida was fourteen or fifteen, I bought a horse for her. Up to that time any horse on the place she wanted, she would go ahead and take and nothing was said.

WEDS GIRL WHEN HER FACE IS REMADE

Plastic Expert Tells How Their Friendship Grew as He Worked on Her Features

New York, July 3.—Pygmalion and Galatea have returned to earth from the realm of mythology. They came in the prosaic raiment of the present, and few of their fellow passengers on the liner Columbus suspected that the signature "Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Pratt" concealed such fabulous celebrities.

Pygmalion, as you know, was the King of Cyprus who sculptured a woman in marble so beautiful that he fell in love with it.

Venus, goddess of love, was so stirred by his passion for the frigid figure that she blew a breath on it and Galatea leaped to life and into her lover's arms.

SEES NOTHING MYTHICAL.

Dr. Pratt protested as the ship docked that he was a simple American citizen devoted to the art of surgery and to his pretty wife, and that there was nothing mythical about him.

Mrs. Pratt was equally vigorous in denying her real identity, but the very denials confirmed the reporters' conviction. For Dr. Pratt said:

"We are returning to New York from our honeymoon. Romance? Why, romance is dead and gone in this age. Mrs. Pratt came to me before we were married and asked that I use my knowledge of plastic surgery on her features."

Plastic surgery is really more sculpture than surgery. The practitioner of the art moulds human features toward perfection as a sculptor works in marble and—but let Dr. Pratt continue:

HIS LOVE IS BORN.

"As I applied my skill on the young woman, I found myself falling in love with her, and when the work was completed, I was wholly in love. So—well, we're married and very happy. But that doesn't make me the King of Cyprus, certainly."

Possibly not, but the doctor did not fall in love with the girl as she first appeared to him. Love did not stir in her either, then. It was not until the features he had formed himself stepped in full beauty that he succumbed and it was not until then that the young woman felt the spark of love.

Oh, no; but if Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Pratt are not really Pygmalion and Galatea, they can play the parts without question.

FINED FOR SHAMPOOING DOGS WITH TURPENTINE

Providence, July 3.—Zandy Miller, thirty-two, of No. 81 Delaine street, administered shampoos of turpentine to dogs which entered his yard and scratched up the soil in his garden. His remedy worked to perfection in getting the dogs away, but the outcries of two dogs as they fled homeward after they had been subjected to the shampoo by the defendant aroused their owners, who took the animals to the police. John Hawthorn, special agent of the S. P. C. A., was summoned to examine the dogs and Miller's arrest followed. Miller was fined $100 and costs in court today.

PHILANDER C. KNOX BEAT HER, WIFE SAYS IN SUIT

Washington, July 3 (A.P.).—Josephine P. Knox filed suit for separate maintenance in the District of Columbia Supreme Court against Philander C. Knox, son of the former Secretary of State and Senator from Pennsylvania. The wife charges cruelty and excessive use of intoxicants.

About four years ago, Mrs. Knox alleged, her husband began drinking to excess, and has pursued a continuous course of cruelty to her and their two boys, six and two years old. He knocked her down June 8, she charged, and injured her so that she found it necessary to leave his home to return to her mother. They were married in 1917.

"REPEAL OR ENFORCE DRY LAW!" U. S. COUNSEL SAYS

New York, July 3.—"We, in this country, need the slogan, 'vote as you drink'" United States Attorney Henry R. Buckner, declared in an Independence Day address before the Rotary Club.

Buckner has been in the limelight recently because of his strict enforcement of the prohibition law which resulted in the padlocking of many restaurants and resorts in the bright light district.

He declared the prohibition law should be enforced or repealed.

Lauds Flappers

Jane Addams, noted publicist of Hull House, Chicago, passing through Boston on her way to a vacation in Maine, made a plea for less censure of the flapper.

WHOLE HARDING CABINET HIT IN OIL CASE

New York, July 3 (A.P.).—Edward L. Doheny's recent statement on the Teapot Dome oil leases, if true, places some degree of responsibility for the "odious transaction" upon every member of the Harding Cabinet, Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, chairman of the Senate committee on public lands which investigated the leases, said.

Senator Walsh, who is on his way abroad, also regarded as important parts of the Doheny statement which he said showed that the leases were not given Doheny to protect the oil lands from drainage by outside wells.

DISCUSSED BY CABINET.

"Mr. Doheny asserts that the subject of the executive order transferring the control of the oil reserves from the Navy Department to the Interior Department was discussed in at least two cabinet meetings, at which Secretary of the Navy Denby expressed his desire to have the transfer made," the Senator said.

"According to my recollection, Secretary Hughes and Secretary Hoover, at least, were asked if the subject was ever considered at a Cabinet meeting. Both replied that it was not, or at least that neither of them had any recollection of such an event.

DISPOSES OF ARGUMENT.

"In the second place, Mr. Doheny asserts that when the plan was under consideration—the Pearl Harbor tanks and paying for them in oil—that 'Fall said that if my company or any other company would undertake the work contemplated (the construction of the tanks) leases reserve—was made because the reserve was being drained by wells outside and to protect the government from loss from drainage so set up."

SALESMAN REPORTS SAMPLE CASE STOLEN

Worcester, July 3. — Benjamin Sherman of New York, salesman for a woman's dress goods concern, reported to the Worcester police that shortly after he arrived here a sample case, containing 80 women's dresses that are two months ahead of the prevailing styles, were stolen from the running board of his automobile, parked for a few minutes in front of the Union Station. The dresses were worth $800.

Boston Plans Biggest Fourth of July Program

EXERCISES SCHEDULED ALL DAY

Military Touch Emphasized by Call to Arms in Defence Test

The last wave of the horde that will pass the two-day holiday away from home poured out of Boston and other communities of New England today, but many more thousands remained, putting final touches to various July Fourth celebration plans.

As National Defense Day, the day's observance of America's state toward independence will have a distinctly military flavor.

Tallored in with nobleheart bonfires, at least one of which will be modernized through the employment of a radio spark to start the blaze, "the Fourth" will be hailed forth in every hour with patriotic exercises, sports, rifle meets, pageants, band concerts, orations, parades and, of course, fireworks.

The official Hub program for the day will include the flag raising at City Hall, 9 A. M.; reading of the Declaration of Independence from the Old State House balcony, 9:45; dedicatory exercises for the declaration tablet on Boston Common, 10:30.

EXERCISES IN PARKS.

Annual oration and ceremonies at the Parkman bandstand, 11 o'clock; patriotic exercises in city districts, 10; municipal athletic meet, Charlesbank, 10; swimming races, Charles River Basin, 2 P. M.; children's pageant, Frog Pond, Boston, 3:30; sunset military demonstration, Frog Pond, 7:30; community demonstration, Frog Pond, 8 to 10, and band concerts at twelve localities throughout the city at 8 P. M.

Throughout the day children's games and sports will be staged on twenty-five playgrounds, as arranged by district committees, and parents of children will receive ice cream, distributed free. The entire Boston official program is under the direction of J. Philip O'Connell, director of public celebrations.

The defense day program, under army direction, will be featured by displays of military strength at camps and cantonments and through musters at the various armories.

Thousands of one-day volunteers are expected to enroll for the day, as an indication of the speed with which reserves can be acquired in time of need.

Last year, on the first National Defense Day, 10,000 one-day volunteers enrolled for Fourth of July service, but this year's total is expected to be greatly in excess of that figure.

The American Legion and other military and veteran organizations have done much toward making this National Defense Day a huge success, and their members are taking part in many parades and demonstrations throughout New England.

SALEM OBSERVANCE.

One of the biggest celebrations of the day outside of Boston proper will be the tercentenary observance in Salem, commemorating the 300th anniversary of the founding of the Witch City. Tomorrow will mark the opening of a demonstration expected to last through next week.

Beginning with a "radio bonfire" at midnight tonight, blazing from the summit of Gallows Hill, near where the ancient witches were hanged, the celebration will be taken up by fires later with religious services in Salem churches.

The bonfire will be one of the biggest in New England, Division 15, A. O. H., having piled 3,000 barrels and 1,200 railroad ties into a towering pyre, whose flames looks out over the Atlantic, 200 feet above sea level.

During Salem's tercentenary celebration, a firemen's muster tomorrow, a parade, a water carnival and an American Legion convention will form the high spots on the program.

Railroads, trolleys, boats and highways began today to choke up with the holiday travel flood that will reach its peak tonight and gradually diminish in the later hours, to swell again Sunday afternoon and night and Monday morning, when the tides reversed and the horde of pleasure-seekers head back for work.

COPS FIND BITE BUT NO RUM

It's Scratching Day for East Boston Police; They Turn Friday to Saturday Night

Like ham-and-eggs, fat-and-forty, Damon-and-Pythias and other affinities, booze and bite have come to be paired inseparable, but today a quartet of energetic policemen isolated the bite from the booze in a reaction that was far from chemical.

Never will their names go ringing down the ages amid the records of achievements of science, but the four had a lovely forced bath, which made them one up on their mates, today being only Friday.

With a warrant to search a certain premises in Trenton street, East Boston, Sergeant Jimmy Lewis and Patrolmen Peter Morley, Thomas Duggan and John Heinsberg fared forth from the East Boston station today in all the naive innocence of raiding policemen with trusting natures.

DIDN'T SUSPECT BITE.

Dutifully they searched the grocery store at the address given and cagerly they sniffed lusty sniffs in an endeavor to find contraband which they had been given reason to believe was there.

They had been given no reason to expect the presence of a bite, for while the bite is ever present in late-day booze, it is confined strictly to the containers with the liquid and therein it remains, a passive captive until a fiery palate and a consuming thirst calls.

Through the piled boxes in the cellar they searched, moving a cobwebby mongrel hound who scratched continually, although somewhat lazily and in a bored fashion as he settled anew in a restful position after each ousting from his comfortable spot in the cool cellar.

But the lazily-scratched dog was all he searched and found that was visible. Chagrined a bit, they returned to the station.

SCRATCHING BEGINS.

Tom Duggan sat himself down in the station for a few minutes of rest and recapitulation, but he could think of no place that had been left without inspection.

In an absent-minded manner he scratched himself—and scratched again. Uneasily he stirred some and settled two watchful fingers on a new spot, little deeper into the anatomy under some hidden urge.

Morley and Lester the Fingers shifted and scratched—scratched and shifted. Then Tom Dugan awoke to the realization that something was amiss somewhere and he opened up shamelessly and endeavored to scratch all over with both hands.

Nervously and still scratching, he hunted up his companions—and they too were scratching.

BEAT SATURDAY A DAY.

"Say—something's wrong," yelled Duggan, which was no news to the rest, and to carry the search further, he peeled off his coat and shirt.

From all corners fleas popped, lively, energetic fleas, deserters from the flea-bitten pup in the lazily-visited cellar—and each of the four hoops auffers realized that they had found the bite even if they hadn't found the liquor.

Frantically they tore their clothes off and raced for the showers, where all the tar soap and other fragrant or pungent applications available were lavished over their nipped bodies.

And Saturday isn't until tomorrow.

ALBERTA COAL MINES CLOSED INDEFINITELY

Edmonton, Alta., July 3 (A.P.)—Work in four of the district coal mines was suspended as a result of the failure of negotiations between Edmonton mine owners and the District Miners' Federation since the termination of the old agreement Tuesday night. It is not known when negotiations will reopen.

WITH 25,000 CARDS FOR COOLIDGE

Catherine and Eugenia Martin are holding the mail sack containing 25,000 birthday cards, which were presented to President Coolidge today as a greeting from the councils of Camp Fire Girls of America.

ARREST FIVE IN CLEANUP OF 'BOOKIES'

Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley, as a result of continued complaints, has started another drive against "bookies" who register bets, both on horse racing and baseball.

The first fruits were five men arrested in front of a downtown hotel by members of Captain George Patterson's squad.

They gave their names as Harry Beck of Holborn street, George Goldberg of Howland street, Charles A. Hill of Dorchester avenue, Thomas Cabbett of Union Park street, and John E. O'Brien of East Cottage street.

Following a conference between Superintendent Crowley and Captain Patterson, Officers Garrett, Fortin, Welby, Daley and Robinson were assigned to the task of rounding up the bookmakers.

BUSH WILL SEE LONDON SCULPTURE IN 200 YEARS

London, July 3 (A.P.)—Miss Malvina, American sculptress, has completed the finishing touches on the great figures over the Aldwych entrance of Bush House, the largest American office building in London, in preparation for their unveiling by Lord Balfour tomorrow.

"How long do you think it will withstand the London atmosphere?" Irving T. Bush asked.

"Oh, two or three hundred years," was the reply.

"Make a note in our diary." he said to his secretary. "That in 200 years' time I must come to London to see how this sculpture is getting along."

Mussolini Wins in Fencing Exhibition

Rome, July 3 (A.P.)—Premier Mussolini today indulged in an impromptu fencing exhibition during commencement exercises concluding the gymnastic course of cadets in training for officers' commissions in the fast militia. After watching the exercises for awhile the Premier jumped into the arena and challenged one of the best fencers present. The crowd, including the leading military authorities, expressed admiration of Mussolini's ability. He was very agile, kept his opponent constantly upon the defensive, and finally forced the latter to acknowledge defeat.

FIREMEN'S WORK PRAISED BY EDISON LIGHT COMPANY

The Edison Electric Illuminating Company, in a letter to Fire Commissioner Glynn, pays high tribute to the Boston firemen who extinguished a fire in the Chinatown street station of the Edison Company.

The letter does not mention the companies that fought the fire, but the records show that District Chief Victor Richer was in charge, and that Engine 26 and Ladder 17 were the companies that responded to a still alarm.

Commissioner Glynn has also announced the appointment of Captain Michael Norton as head of the newly-created Bureau of Building Survey and Inspection Division of the Uniform Force.

Old Volvano Flares Up

Idaho Falls, Idaho, July 3.—An old extinct volcanic mountain, located 100 miles north of Idaho Falls, just across the Montana line, has become active and is pouring a river of mud down its sides.

GIRLS PRESENT CARDS TO COOLIDGE

Eleven representatives of the Camp Fire Girls of America arrived at White Court, Swampscott, today and presented President Coolidge 25,000 postcards as a birthday greeting from all the Camp Fire Councils from Maine to Oregon.

The group was headed by Miss Virginia Anderson of Brooklyn, who arrived in Boston by airplane with three sacks of postcards.

The President appeared on the lawn after the arrival of the girls had been announced by Secretary Sanders. Miss Anderson, aided by Miss Catherine Martin, Eugenia Martin and Mrs. Samuel Streit, national advisory counsel, opened the sacks and presented the cards to him.

Others present included Miss Lotta A. Clark, national field secretary, who met Miss Anderson at the airport; Florence Sanger, Jennie Clark, Zillah Wells, Catherine Hayward, Florence Heintz and Margaret Stannard.

STOLEN WESTFIELD AUTO RECOVERED IN CANADA

Westfield, July 3.—A five-passenger sedan stolen from Mrs. Frank E. Cowles of Broad street more than eight months ago, has been located in Canada, Mrs. Cowles was informed by the Montreal authorities. The latter wrote her asking for evidence of her ownership of the machine. The auto was stolen from a street in prinefield, October 24, while Mrs. Cowles was shopping.

FERGUSON WAS 'EASY MARK'

Never Failed to Respond When Needy Asked Cash, Selectman Says

"Harry M. Ferguson was an 'easymark;' that's why he is in his present predicament," said Selectman Lyman T. Brown of Natick, in discussing the actions of the deposed town treasurer, who, according to State auditors, is short nearly $14,000 in his accounts.

"Every boiler that needed a dollar always went to Harry knowing that he would not be refused," continued Selectman Brown. "No matter that could not go on because of a scarcity of funds available. He never said 'no' to anyone who asked for money. He contributed to every 'drive' that came along, and now he is suffering for it.

"He and some of his friends the writer of this can be took, went into the Cochituate Fire Company, which was making a pieced rim for automobiles that made it possible to adjust tires more easily, but most of his friends are of the opinion that only a part of it went for that purpose. He patented the rim, which was invented by a friend of his.

HAS MANY FRIENDS.

"There isn't a man in Natick that isn't willing to help him. He's one of the 'whitest' men that ever lived and his friends here are going to see him through. A meeting of thirty or forty of the leading men of the town was held when it was learned there was a shortage in his account and they pledged themselves to raise $11,000 each over night to make up the deficit.

"No move has been made to prosecute him and I doubt if any action will be taken against him. Restitution will be made by his friends to the John T. Paige Insurance Company of Boston, through which he was bonded, and I am sure the board of selectmen will not act against him, as the town is protected through the bonding company to the extent of $20,000."

ORDAIN 9 BAY STATE JESUIT SCHOLASTICS

Of thirty-seven Jesuit scholastics from Woodstock College, Woodstock, Md., ordained during teh week to the priesthood by Archbishop Curley of Baltimore, nine were born and educated in Boston and other New England cities. These are John J. Keane of Jamaica Plain, Joseph F. Bunnell of Somerville, Thomas Augustine Fay of Brookline, James J. McDermott of New Bedford, William J. McGarry of Hamilton, John Collins of Roxbury, Florance M. Gillis and James J. Kelley of Dorchester, and John J. Smith of Taunton. The following scholastics ordained taught for several years at Boston College, Fathers Charles J. Foley, Joseph A. Slattery and William B. O'Shaughnessy.

"JOHNNIE" CARROLL, SONG WRITER, DEAD

New York, July 3 (A.P.).—"Johnnie" Carroll, famous a generation ago as an actor and song writer, died in Brooklyn. He was sixty-three years old.

Born in Manhattan, "Johnnie" ran away from home at the age of eleven to join a theatrical troupe, four years later he made his debut as a singer of Irish ballads in the old Koster and Bial Music Hall and his success was instantaneous.

He played with Lawrence Dicott, Joe Hart, Weber and Fields and Sam Bernard. Among his best known songs, were: "I Love You Better Than You Knew," "I Will Love You 'Till the Last," and "When We Were Happy, You and I."

Attleboro Title Goes to Man Who Ate 19 Bananas

Attleboro, July 3.—Unlike the fruit vendor in the popular song, "the Featherville gang," as a party of young men in that section of the city are known, has plenty of bananas, and also the champion banana muncher of this section in its midst. Walter Johnson took first prize in a banana-eating contest when he devoured 19, one after another, and nosed out "Spud" Holway, who could eat only 17.

Olson, another member of the gang, ate six before he quit, and Chick O'Neil had only eaten one when he was told Johnson had eaten 19 and he quit.

CARMELITES TO OPEN NOVENA ON TUESDAY

Annual Services to Be Held at Their Convent in Roxbury

The annual novena in honor of Our Lady of Mount Carmel will begin on Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Carmelite convent, No. 61 Mount Pleasant avenue, Roxbury. After Tuesday the exercises will begin daily at 8 o'clock. Prayers are followed by benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. For the prayers, short sermon and benediction each evening there will be a different priest.

Those unable to make the novena in person are allowed to send their spiritual and temporal petitions to the Carmelite Sisters and these will be remembered by the community members and by the general public.

2 MEN CONVICTED IN 'BRICKBOTTOM' TRIALS

Augustine Spinosa, defendant in the so-called Somerville "Brickbottom" liquor cases, pleaded guilty in the Middlesex Criminal Court, to charges of illegal sale of liquor, keeping and exposing liquor for sale, and maintaining a liquor nuisance. He was then sentenced to two months in the House of Correction and was fined $200 by Judge Arthur P. Stone.

Demaglio Ottiveo, another of the defendants, pleaded guilty to the same charges earlier in the day and was given a similar sentence.

COOLIDGE PAYS TRIBUTE TO DEAD CONGRESSMAN

Amherst, July 3.—Mrs. George R. Churchill, widow of Representative George R. Churchill, who died suddenly at his home here, has received a letter of condolence from President Coolidge, expressing his sympathy and the sympathy of Mrs. Coolidge. He also mourns the loss of Representative Churchill as a public officer and a friend.

Representative Churchill's funeral will take place at his residence here tomorrow. Burial will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

MRS. CURLEY IN DOUBT AS TO CANDIDACY

Too Soon to State Decisively, Mayor's Wife Says of Entry Into Campaign

However, she said, it wasn't too early to state "decisively" whether she would enter the lists and that she would prefer not to commit herself to a definite answer so early in the season.

"The only public office I have ever held," said Mrs. Curley," was that as Mrs. Curley, and with my six children that has been sufficient.

"I always have been keenly interested in politics, and have followed Mr. Curley's problems and political career with the closest interest."

Mrs. Curley was emphatic concerning the exercise of suffrage by women, and said she was pleased that it had always been one of Mayor Curley's strongest interests.

"I believe that every woman should vote and keep herself informed about politics," she said. "Most of them do, and more are learning every day. I never campaigned myself for suffrage as it was up for legislation, but I always believed heartily in it."

The smallest Curley, a little sunburned boy of four, interrupted to display the coat of tan he had amassed on the beach in the afternoon, and Mrs. Curley, who may turn out to be the "Ma" Ferguson or Nellie Ross of Boston, was not hesitant in "making a statement" that it was the finest coat of tan she had ever seen.

Sends Back $2 to City So He Can Sleep Again

A $2 bill to be added to the municipal "conscience fund" was received by the City Treasurer in a letter postmarked "Station A" and signed "A Guilty Conscience."

After an acknowledgement that "Honesty is the best policy," the letter stated:

"Before I took this $2 I was a sound sleeper; now that I am returning it I confidently expect a resumption of my tranquil slumber," the note said:

36 COOLIES INJURED IN HINDOO-MOSLEM RIOTS

Calcutta, British India, July 3 (A.P.).—A riot occurred in the outskirts of Calcutta in connection with the Moslem festival. Thirty-six coolies, most of them Mohammedans, were injured.

Simla, British India, July 3 (A.P.)—Reports arriving here from Delhi, Lahore, Amritsar and other northern India stations, show that the Moslem festival, which last year was the occasion for factional fighting between Moslems and Hindus passed off quietly.

SMALL HERRING PILED ON MANOMET BEACH

Manomet, July 3.—Small herring, such as become sardines, are piled on the beach here a foot deep, having been driven ashore by large schools of mackerel that reached these waters a few days ago. Mackerel feed on young herring. They drove the smaller fish into water only a few inches deep and the receding tides did the rest.

SWEETIE SONG'S TRAIL LEADS TO COURT

Girl Charges and Youth Denies Assault; Judge Dismisses Case

"I wish I had a sweetheart to love me all the time," sang Charlotte E. Begley, pretty sixteen-year-old Wakefield girl, as she walked homeward with her chum, Mary Meuse, and as a result of that song Joseph Marricola of Wakefield was before Judge Willis W. Stover in the District Court.

Marricola says he walked in front of Charlotte and when she sang, "I wish I had a nickel, I wish I had a dime, I wish I had a sweetheart to love me all the time," Marricola said he turned around and told Charlotte she was too young to have a sweetheart. Whereupon Charlotte is alleged to have called Joseph a "wop," and Joseph retaliated by calling Charlotte a "pocket Jumper."

Charlotta alleges Joseph struck her and knocked her down.

Joseph countered that Charlotte declared she wasn't too young and made a grab for him, and he only pushed her aside.

Judge Stover said the whole argument was too trivial to clutter up the court docket and dismissed the case, telling Joseph that if he did assault Charlotte, not to do it again.

HIGH HONOR FOR BROOKLINE WOMAN

Indianapolis, July 3.—Miss Mary McSkimmon, principal of the Pierce School of Brookline, Mass., was elected president of the National Education Association in convention here.

Opposed by Miss Cornelia Adair of Richmond, Va., she got 507 votes to 322 for her rival. Miss McSkimmon succeeds Jesse H. Newlon, superintendent of schools in Denver.

The Indianapolis meeting has been unusually successful and inspiring. High school athletics were warmly defended today by Arthur L. Trester, secretary of the Indiana High School Athletic Association.

"Schoolmen and laymen both are beginning to appreciate the true place of athletics in high school life," he declared. "Yet there are reactionaries who would oust them from the schools.

"It would be a fine thing if high school superintendents would go in for athletics willingly, rather than wait until they are forced in."

It was announced that the association has abandoned its fight for a $100,000,000 Federal Aid Fund for educational purposes. It has gone on record once more, however, in favor of a national department of education, its chief to have a cabinet portfolio. Senator Curtis of Kansas has promised to support the bill in the Senate, it was stated by its sponsors.

SOVIET CONDEMNS THREE GERMANS AS PLOTTERS

Moscow, July 3 (A.P.) — The Supreme Court sentenced to death Dr. Karl Kinderman, Max von Ditmar and Theodore Voicht, three Germans charged with plotting against the lives of Trotsky and other Bolshevik leaders.

Kinderman, von Ditmar and Voicht were arrested nine months ago. They then were described as German "commercial agents" and charged with commercial espionage.

A dispatch from Berlin in January said the men had been taken into custody by the Russians because it was alleged they had agreed with German merchants to look up former customers in Siberia and keep them in touch with German concerns.

2 SUSPECTED IN PLOT TO STEAL DOHENY CHILDREN

Los Angeles, July 3 (A.P.)—Talk of a plot to kidnap the grandchildren of E. L. Doheny, millionaire oil magnate, has been revived with the arrest of two loiterers near the Doheny Summer home at Beverly Hills. Held for investigation at the county jail, the pair gave the names of Joseph A. Jower and W. J. Faseling, both of Portland, Ore.

Deputy sheriffs who arrested the men said they found in their possession a revolver, two pieces of gas pipe and a hypodermic needle.

'Y' ADDS TO HOLDINGS AT LAKE MONPONSET

Fourteen more acres of land and two more buildings have been purchased at Lake Monponset by the Boston Y. M. C. A. The "Y" which conducts Camp Ousamequin at the lake now has forty acres of land and 1,350 feet of water front.

THREE RESCUED IN MYSTIC LAKE

Life Guard James Murtaugh celebrated his first day at the Sandy Beach bathhouse, Upper Mystic Lake, by making himself a hero when he saved three girls from drowning in the lake.

Eight attractive young women were paddling in the lake astride a telephone pole as Murtaugh was leaving the bath house to go home for the night.

Suddenly the pole turned in the water and three of the girls were thrown into the lake where the water was over their heads.

Their companions, unable to swim, became terror-stricken, and yelled for help.

The newly appointed life guard yelled to a passerby to come out with a boat, and dived into the lake after the girls. He brought one to shallow water and went back for the other two.

Mary Green, sixteen years old, of No. 5 Perkins street, Charlestown, had gone down for the third time. Grabbing her companion, Murtaugh held her head above water until she got her lungs full of air, and then, with the girl under his arm, dived for her companion.

He brought both girls ashore and they later were taken to their homes none the worse for their ducking.

BANKER FOUND GUILTY OF U. S. MAIL FRAUDS

Indianapolis, July 3 (A.P.).—Morton S. Hawkins, former president of the defunct Hawkins Mortgage company, was found guilty of using the mails to defraud in Federal Court here.

Hawkins was the only witness for the defence. The government alleged that through false financial statements, illegal advertising and erroneous literature sent through the mails thousands of persons were mulcted out of several million dollars. Fourteen associates were found guilty and previously sentenced to prison on the same charge.

PROBATE OF McCLINTOCK WILL TO BE ASKED JULY 9

Chicago, July 3 (A.P.)—Application for admission to probate of the will in which Billy McClintock made William Darling Shepherd the chief beneficiary of a $1,000,000 estate was postponed until July 9.

Shepherd, Kirkland, who has been retained by Shepherd, today said:

"I will take the will into the Probate Court, whether I represent the will further depends upon what happens."

He had reference to the proposed contest to break the will by seven Iowa cousins of Billy McClintock and Miss Isabella Pope, who waited with a marriage license when Billy died.

WIFE TAKES $50,000 FOR DOWER IN $2,000,000

Chicago, July 3 (A.P.)—Mrs. Gladys S. Pearson, twenty-seven, accepted a $50,000 settlement and relinquished a dower right to a $2,000,000 inheritance when she obtained a divorce from Frederick Beverly Pearson, sportsman and heir to the late Walter B. Pearson, manufacturer. The Pearsons were married in 1922. Mrs. Pearson charged her husband with drunkenness since that time. Pearson, now thirty, will get one-third of his father's $6,000,000 estate when he is thirty-five years old.

DRIVE ON WORCESTER BUS LINES IS STARTED

Worcester, July 3.—A bill in equity to restrain the Boston and Worcester Bus Lines Company and the Farnum Bus Lines, Inc., from operating between Boston and Worcester, will be filed within a few days by the Worcester Street Railway Company. It was learned today.

Chief Justice Rugg has ruled that buses operating in intercity traffic cannot run unless a franchise has been obtained from each community through which the buses operate.

BROOKLINE GIRL WINS POSTER CONTEST

Tuberculosis League Awards Are Made to Webster and Brockton Students

First prize in the poster contest run by the Massachusetts Tuberculosis League was awarded to Miss Betty Wade, a Brookline High school sophomore.

The winner of the first prize in the junior high school division was Lucy Wirkeitis of Webster, and the first prize winner in the fifth and sixth grades division was Annie Vezukwics of the Franklin school, Brockton.

Miss Wade's poster has been accepted by a local publishing concern to be used in a book. The poster depicts a group of youthful crusaders in the garb of mediaeval warriors, bearing a banner with the words pointing the way to health. The lettering above and below the figure spells the message, "Join the Crusade Against Tuberculosis."

Judges of the contest were Professor C. T. Turner of M. I. T.; Miss Blanche F. Bradford, director of drawing at the Somerville High school, and a local newspaper man.

$100 PRIZE OFFERED FOR FITCHBURG SLOGAN

Fitchburg, July 3—A cash prize of $100 for a city slogan has been offered by the Chamber of Commerce here. All the judges want is a line of no more than seven words that will tell the world the supremacy of Fitchburg.

125 OF BOSTON ELKS WILL GO TO PACIFIC

Special Train of 14 Cars to Carry Lodge Members to Oregon

One hundred and twenty-five members of the Elks from Greater Boston, with their families, will leave the North Station at 8:30 o'clock, standard time, this evening for Portland, Ore., where the annual convention of the Elks will be held from July 12 to July 18.

The special train will include fourteen cars.

A band will see the Boston delegation off. The Boston lodge, under the personal supervision of Michael J. Mellody, will be assisted by Dennis J. McGillicuddy, District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler Timothy E. McCarthy, Exalted Ruler Daniel J. Kane, Past Exalted Rulers Michael F. Culliney and Joseph M. Sullivan, John H. Dunn, Michael H. Greeley, Edward L. Geary, Eugene C. McCarthy, George A. Stuart, Samuel Kalesky and Richard H. Graham.

POLAND AND GERMANY FIGHT ECONOMIC WAR

Berlin, July 3 (A.P.).—Economic war between Germany and Poland has been declared with issuance of a decree by the Reichsrat imposing prohibitive duties on Poland's main agricultural and industrial exports.

The Modus Vivendi governing trade relations between Poland and Germany expired on April 1, and no steps have been taken for its renewal. This temporary agreement had been in force since the lapsing of the period provided for in the treaty of Versailles to care for post-war adjustments.

Negotiations for a regular commercial treaty were begun last Autumn, but they were abandoned after efforts to reconcile the views of the two countries.

RIFFIANS WITHIN 20 MILES OF FEZ

Fez, French Morocco, July 3 (A.P.).—Increased pressure by the Riffians with attacks against each of the three principal French groups, is noted in an official communique.

Riffian incursions south of the Guergha River continue, reaching to a depth of twelve miles northwest of El Arba De Tissk. (This town is about twenty miles northwest of Fez).

SIGNS FOR AMERICAN ACCIDENT INSURANCE

Victor Heath, president of the Ferdinand Company, which operates the famous old Blue Store in Roxbury, termed the $7,500 accident policy wonderful as he signed his application in the presence of B. J. O'Brien (left), special insurance representative of the Boston Evening American.

GERMAN SYMPATHIZERS BREAK UP FRENCH DINNER

Paris, July 3 (A.P.).—A banquet of "super-realists," in the famous restaurant Closerie Des Lilas, in the Montparnasse quarter, was broken up by a band of German sympathizers, who took umbrage at a statement of Rachilde (Mme. Valletes), dean of French women novelists. Rachildre replied in the negative to a newspaper query whether French men ought to marry German women.

HADASSAH REELECTS MISS SZOLD PRESIDENT

Washington, July 3 (A.P.).—Miss Henrietta Szold of New York was reelected president of Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization of America, at the concluding session of its annual convention.

ROXBURY STORE HEAD PRAISES $7,500 POLICY

Victor Heath is one of the leading business men of Roxbury. He is president of the Roxbury Board of Trade, is head of the Ferdinand stores in Roxbury and is a director in several banks.

Mr. Heath is also a firm believer in life insurance. For the 200 employes of his stores he carries group insurance. Personally, he is heavily insured.

The $7,500 insurance policy which the Boston Evening American is offering at 15 cents a high is highly commended by Mr. Heath, who eagerly seized the opportunity to secure one of these policies at a yearly cost of $1.

COVERS FIELD OF TRAVEL.

"The Boston Evening American policy is wonderful," Mr. Heath declared today. "I strongly urge all my employes and every other person in Greater Boston to avail themselves of this splendid offer.

"The policy specifically covers the field of travel. In this day of congested traffic, with our streets and highways each day becoming more clogged with automobiles and trucks, the danger of injury or death to pedestrians, as well as the operators and passengers in motor vehicles, is indeed great.

"The Boston Evening American policy is the most liberal one I have ever heard of. The person who doesn't avail himself of this wonderful opportunity to secure a policy at only the cost of registration, is indeed missing a golden opportunity."

HOW TO GET POLICY.

The Boston Evening American is offering this policy to all home delivery subscribers of the paper. If you are a subscriber and the paper is delivered at your home, fill in the coupon and send it in to the Boston Evening American with the registration fee of $1.

If you are not a home delivery subscriber, fill in the coupon and signify your desire to have the paper delivered to your home. Enclose the $1 registration fee. You will receive the policy, the Boston Evening American will be delivered daily to your home and thereafter you will pay the newsboy 12 cents a week for the paper.

WOMAN IS WESTERN UNION OFFICIAL

New York, July 3 (A.P.).—Miss Kate O'Flanigan, red-haired daughter of an Irish father and a Scotch mother, who was educated in a convent and who speaks with a gentle burr, is the first woman executive of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

She has become assistant secretary of the company. For fourteen years she was secretary to Newcomb Carlton, president. Prior to that she was secretary to Charles R. Huntley, president of the Buffalo General Electric Company. She came to this country from Greenock, on the Clyde.

She is feminine in dress and demeanor and believes in marriage and children for the average woman.

VENEZUELA GIVES SWORD TO PERSHING

Washington, July 3 (A.P.).—The Venezuelan charge d'affaires delivered to General Pershing, through the State Department, the sword of General Jose Antonio Paez, one of his nation's liberators, and the insignia of the order of the Liberators as a gift from President Gomez.

'FITZ' ASSAILS CURLEY AT HEARING

Dorchester Garage Permit Outrage, Former Mayor Declares

A fiery attack against Mayor Curley for signing a permit for a garage at Washington and Park streets, Dorchester, was delivered by former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald at a hearing before Fire Marshal Peter G. Neal.

"Everybody at City Hall knows that His Honor was seen long before the street commissioners knew anything about it," Fitzgerald charged.

In appealing to the fire marshal for a revocation of the permit, Fitzgerald declared that the garage would be a menace to the children in the neighborhood.

No one, he continued, knew anything of the hearing at City Hall with the result that there was no opposition at that time.

CALLS IT OUTRAGE.

He characterized the granting of the permit as "an outrage," the proposed building being but forty feet away from a school in which there are mentally deficient children. The law, he maintained, says that no garage shall be built within 500 feet of a schoolhouse.

"The first the people in the neighborhood knew of the matter was days after Mayor Curley had signed the permit," he declared. "This is nothing new. Curley's administration is filled with similar instances.

FITZ IS CRITICIZED

Representative Martin Hays, counsel for Max Brown the owner, accused Fitzgerald of "making a political speech."

"Everybody knows he is a candidate for mayor," said Hays.

A remark from Representative Bernard Ginsberg of Dorchester, also in opposition, elicited from Hays the remark that the hearing had developed into "a political rally."

Representative Thomas H. Hibbard, counsel for the remonstrants, maintained that there was no need for the garage at the place selected and that it would be a menace to public safety.

Others to protest were former Councilor Walter A. Cullity, Jesse for Frank H. Phinney of Hyde Park, and a number of women residents of the district.

In his final argument Hays asserted that the remonstrant residents were for the most part actuated by selfish motives and that they feared their property would depreciate in value.

URGE CEMETERY BE MADE INTO PLAYGROUND

Sanford, Me., July 3—A petition is being circulated in Sanford to have all bodies removed from the cemetery next to the Emerson School building in Main street. It is proposed that the land will be owned by the town and to make an addition to the present playground at this school, which is sadly needed. In such case all bodies will be removed without cost and a suitable lot provided in Oakdale Cemetery. Nearly all have already been released.

RAILWAY MAIL CLERK HELD FOR THEFT OF RING

William G. Hugelman, for many years a railway mail clerk, was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Jenney on charges of stealing a ring from a parcel post package. This was addressed to a firm in Pawtucket. The complainant was Postoffice Inspector James E. Sullivan. Hugelman waived examination and was held for the Federal Grand Jury in $2,000 bail. He was unable to provide the surety and went to the East Cambridge jail.

FIRECRACKER HURLED BY CHUM BURNS BOY

Worcester, July 3. — Stanislaus Marticaviche, eight, of No. 91 Millbury street, suffered burns about the head and face when a playmate threw a lighted firecracker at him. He was taken to the City Hospital and his condition is serious.

Abraham Beleson, thirteen, of Heywood street, was seriously injured when a cartridge which he had in his playmates found in a dump exploded.

Everett Woman Hears Tire Burst, Thinks She's Shot

The bursting of an automobile tire convinced an Everett woman that she had been shot. The woman collapsed on the sidewalk and it was with difficulty that Motorcycle Policeman Walter Hall convinced her that she was not wounded.

Trucks operated by William Pietro of Medford and Thomas O'Neil of 99 Woodville street collided at the corner of Floyd and Main streets. A tire on Pietro's truck burst.

Officer Hall saw the accident, heard the noise and then saw a woman collapse on the sidewalk about 25 feet away crying, "I'm shot."

MATE ENDS 58 YEARS' SERVICE ON NANTASKET

Cornelius McCarthy, mate of the steamship Nantasket, which plies between Boston and Nantasket Beach, had his last day yesterday. It was the 58th anniversary of his employment with the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company.

Cornelius McCarthy

On every trip during the day he held an impromptu reception, and recited many anecdotes of his long career as mate. One of the stories concerned his first trip on the first boat to sail to Nantasket Beach.

In those days there was no broad channel leading to the wharf on a straightaway trip, so Mate McCarthy had to make out a channel up the winding Weir river, which was used continuously until 1916. The old channel was so winding that the mate could see the passage of the boat would often be in front of the bow of the boat. This always created a sensation on board.

Mate McCarthy has seen many changes during his career and, of course, has seen a number of the present manager, Frederic L. Lane.

Mr. Lane, who is no youngster in the service of the company, likes nothing better than to get with his mate and swap stories of the old days. He admits he would feel lost without the support of the veteran mate.

WORCESTER PRIEST TO BE BURIED IN LYNN CEMETERY

Worcester, July 3.—The body of Rev. Joseph C. Allard, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, who died Tuesday in the Franciscan Home, was transferred from the rectory to the church where it will lie in state until after the Pontifical Mass of Requiem today by Bishop Thomas O'Leary of Springfield, assisted by priests from all the societies of the parish stood by the body all through the night.

The body will be taken to Lynn for burial in St. Jean Baptiste Cemetery.

ALISBURY RUM RIBES TOLD BY WITNESS

Former Policeman Says He Got $25 From Four Men Unloading Liquor

Startling testimony of how liquor was openly landed at Salisbury and its bribes were handed out to those trustworthy or its persons who were lay to inform the authorities, continues to feature the trial of the twenty-odd Salisbury officials and citizens charged in Federal court with conspiracy to violate the liquor law.

Thirty-two trucks laden with liquor passed the home of Isaac H. Copland in a single night, he testified.

Copeland could not sleep on account of the noise made by the rum procession and he went into the street and protested. A man, he knew as "Lucia," ordered him back into the house and he obeyed the order. The contents of the trucks, the witness said, were carried into a rear door of the New Davis House.

Sidney Collins, street commissioner of Salisbury and a member of the police force when Selectman Harold F. Condon, one of the defendants, was chief of police, testified that he was paid $25 on four occasions when he was about while liquor was being unloaded or transported through the town.

The chief of police gave him $25 on one occasion, he testified, while "Tha Jap," Anthony Karanagno, and one, Lucia, paid him $25 on other occasions, and an unknown man gave him a similar amount.

William Jackson testified that he handled boxes taken from boats and transported them to his yard from where they were later removed in trucks. He was paid $15 a load for handling the "boxes."

MALDEN BOY BREAKS MAN'S ARM WITH STONE

A small stone in the hands of a small boy is a dangerous weapon, as Alfred J. Parker, an ice man in Malden, has cried. He chased some boys away from the rear of his ice wagon. He alleges that one of the boys, Francis Gearon of Franklin street, picked up a stone and threw it, striking his arm and fracturing it. A summons was issued.

A MAN told us the other day that he felt blue all the time until he discovered that the walls of his room were an ugly blue. He found a cheerful room through the Classified Ads.

A glorious drink for the glorious Fourth

KEEP this famous old ginger ale in mind when you are planning your Fourth of July holiday.

Whether you stay at home and brave the city's heat, or take a little trip to green-clad woods or seashore's sands, you'll welcome a cool, sparkling bottle of "Canada Dry."

It lifts you up! Refreshes! Invigorates! Charms with its delicate, intriguing flavor and its cool, crisp freshness.

For "Canada Dry" is a real ginger ale, made from real Jamaica ginger That is the reason it is so genuinely good for you—that is the reason it is so friendly to your thirst and your general well-being on a hot summer's day.

Look for the name CANADA DRY on the bottle cap

REGARDING IMITATIONS

For your own protection, remember that every ginger ale sold in a green bottle is not "Canada Dry." It pays to be particular.

KEEN COMPETITION DUE AT HAMILTON SHOW

SOCIETY TO SEE NOTED HORSEMEN

Many Equine Stars Entered in Various Events Conducted by Gardner Post

A record breaking crowd of prominent North Shore society people and horse lovers will attend the August P. Gardner American Legion Post horse show at Hamilton tomorrow. It will be a gala day.

Mr. Bayard Tuckerman's Desert Queen is a big favorite in Class A competition. The Prince of Wales piloted Mr. Tuckerman's entry while on his visit here, when he was the honor guest of the Tuckermans. This event will furnish the bulk of the entertainment.

Other leading entries are Clifton Pride and Alamande, owned by Mrs. Frederick Ayer. F. H. Prince has Bright Eyes as a contender for the Buddy's Cup. Hee is another starter who will be shown over the jumps by W. S. Forbes.

Thrilling finishes and close competition are looked for when a field of 10 starters battle for the Hamilton Cup. In this event heavyweight hunters will be shown over jumps about four feet. Bayard Tuckerman will mount Irish, who was one of the victorious Myopia Hunt horses at Waveney recently.

James P. Mandell, Frederick Ayer, Bayard Tuckerman and W. S. Forbes will clear the jumps together for the Legion cup team prize. Interest is intense with this quartet of horsemen scheduled to appear in pairs.

Then there are classes C and D, which will have two trophies at stake. In the open hurdle race six starters will battle over the timber. Charles Tainter and Alvin Surtwell are listed to compete. Scintillating Lad is a Tainter entry, while Surtwell will hold the reins over Louppe.

In the open horse class for the Essex Cup at stake the Macomber-Tuckerman entry, Dixon Royal, is right in the limelight. The other mounts in this event are Louppe, Tommy, Calasy, Daylight and Freeboy.

The entry list follows:

ANXIOUS TO GET IN RING, SAYS DEMPSEY

London, July 3 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey is to spar nine rounds tomorrow night at Brighton as the feature of a boxing tournament, the proceeds of which will go to the Royal Sussex Hospital.

The champion will go three rounds each with Phil Scott, who is considered a likely future heavyweight champion of England; Eddie Eagan, Oxford Rhodes scholar and Olympic heavyweight champion, and Captain Ernest Chandler, former amateur heavyweight titleholder.

In a signed article for the Weekly Dispatch, to be published Sunday, Dempsey says:

"I am unemployed because there are so few fighters who could give the public a good show for their money if we met. Nobody's more anxious to get into the ring than I am."

The champion sees little prospect of any work before July of next year, when he is to meet Gene Tunney. He discloses suggestions that he is holding out for high prices, declaring his willingness to fight at any time on a percentage basis.

Tunney Wants Dempsey Battle on Labor Day

Kansas City, Kansas, July 3 (A.P.)—Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight boxing champion and recent conqueror of Tommy Gibbons, will meet "Italian Jack" Herman, New York heavyweight, in a 12-round no-decision bout here tonight.

Herman will have the advantage in weight, but Tunney is a decided favorite.

Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, announced today he would confer in New York with Jack Dempsey on the latter's return from Europe in an effort to match Tunney with the heavyweight champion this year. Gibson said he would urge Labor Day as the date for the battle.

DE PALMA HITS 105 MILES AN HOUR PACE

Salem, N. H., July 3—One hundred and five miles an hour was the fastest speed turned in at the new Rockingham motor speedway when the majority of the twelve drivers who are to participate in the 100-mile race tomorrow afternoon drove over the new course for the first time.

Ralph De Palma was the man who clocked at this time. He expressed himself after whirling around the track for thirty-five miles that the course was much faster than he had predicted.

Lenglen Gets Her 6th Championship

Wimbledon, Eng., July 3 (A.P.)—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen of France won her sixth Wimbledon women's tennis championship today, defeating the English girl, champion, Joan Fry, 6—0, 6—0, in the finals of the All-England tournament.

WINGFIELD IS CHOICE TO FACE SENATORS

By NICK FLATLEY

Stanley Harris and his Senators are headed toward another title. That's the only conclusion that can be drawn after watching the world champions doing their stuff. The outfit has class marked all over it, from the buttons on the caps to the spikes on the heels. The boys function smoothly and promptly, and go about their business with a vim and apparent enjoyment that is delightful to watch.

The Senators had two pitchers knocked off the peak in their opening explosion here, but they won the double header just the same, and there never was any doubt, as far as they were concerned, that they were going to win it.

Nick Flatley

Stanley Harris, the boy manager is baseball's greatest juggler. He doesn't hesitate and wonder before he makes his shifts. He thinks on high all the time, and with him to think is to act. He does a lot of things that look lucky, but there really isn't much luck attached to the triumphal march of his club.

Just now the Athletics are giving the champs quite a tussle. Looks like a great race out in front. But from where we sit, it appears that the Washington troupe will make a parade of it, after another month has rattled into history. You might remember this, and save us the trouble of reprinting it later on.

Fenway Sidelights

The Senators get the breaks because they hustle perpetually. They are always on the loop, even when they're miles in front. They run for extra bases every time they hit the ball. They have the practice of cutting off hostile attempts to do the same thing reduced to a science.

* * *

Goslin, in left field, is now a remarkably good fly chaser. He has developed into a real star from an awkward novice in the short space of a year.

* * *

Covaleskie, league leading pitcher, will snitball against the Sox today. Wingfield is due to work for the natives.

* * *

Mel Merritt, former star shortstop of Worcester Academy, is being looked over by Stanley Harris. The youngster, who has been semi-pro in the South Shore, worked out before the double header.

* * *

Little Dud Lee almost had a triple play when he speared a Hluege liner with two on. The ball was hit so hard that the triple killing couldn't quite go through.

FROM INSIDE, LOOKING WAY, WAY OUT

By "AL"

RIDING out last night on the rattler to the wide, open spaces (a comma, not a hyphen, think you), where men are men and hayland is soon going to be houselots, we examined a booklet given us in a spirit of jest by a former sporting writer who has just recently joined the literati and is a candidate for the cognoscenti.

The pamphlet inquired to know, on page 28:

Do you get dizzy? Are you easily dazed? Are you easily excited? Do your hands tremble? Does your heart flutter? Are you easily irritated? Are you easily frightened? Is your temper irritable? Is your sleeping unrefreshing? Do you suffer from neuralgia? Is there a twitching of the muscles? Do you forget what you read? Is there a rush of blood to the head? Do you have a languid feeling?

* * *

To these queries we unhesitatingly give answer. The replies include: Unquestionably, yes. Indubitably. Now, well, you know. Indeed, we are. Of course. Certainment. More so than ever in the last few days. Quo Vadis. Roughly speaking, out, out. Yes, a trace. Stavanger. Close card before striking match. Do not talk to the motorman. Stop, look and listen.

There may be more or less answers than questions. Also the replies may not be heriatim. But the big point is, the questionnaire, so thoughtfully handed us by one of nature's nobleman, has brought to our attention the fact that we need a vacation. And with the consent of the management, effective as of Monday, July 6, we are going to take same, to run concurrently until high noon on Saturday, July 11.

THAT, to us, is the most important thing in the world. This vacation is to be ALL OURS.

We believe that vacationizing is the biggest sport event in these United States at this moment. And we would be recreant, indeed, to our trust if we did not chronicle the fact that the Little Old Vacation is the biggest thing in the minds of millions of Americans on this day and date. It is the BIG SPORTING EVENT OF JULY FOURTH. The Little Old Vacation.

Inside Golf

By CHESTER HORTON

There are three ways employed by different players to start the club back from the ball. Most of the par players drag it back—that is, the head lead slightly in starting away, and the clubhead, wrist and arms "all together" until near the top, when the wrists break upward and back. The third method is lifting the clubhead away with the right hand predominant. Not many golfers do this. By "lifting" I mean the club is merely carried back, with the clubhead even with the hands about all the way up, the wrists breaking upward and backward at the top. Some golfers have a tendency to roll the left forearm to the right in the back swing, opening up the club face too much. A good cure for this is to lift the club away with the right hand in command of it at the start. In any method keep the clubhead low at the start.

THE DRAG-BACK

WILLS GETS $25,000 A MINUTE BY RING VICTORY

SHARKEY EAGER TO MEET HIM

Greb Battles Like Tiger, but Walker Weathers Thrilling 15-Rounder

By JACK CONWAY

New York, July 3.—Harry Greb successfully defended his title as world's middleweight champion when he won the decision over Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, in a desperate 15-round battle before sixty thousand persons at the great Italian Hospital show at the Polo Grounds.

Jack Conway

Greb all but knocked out Walker in the fourteenth round in a terrific left hand swing to the chin and a right hand punch to the same spot dazed Walker. Greb then opened up and pounded with a fierce attack to the head and body. Walker was virtually helpless and was battered around the ring almost at will by the middleweight champion. Mickey's wonderful courage was the only thing that saved him from a knockout. At the bell in the fourteenth round Walker was so dazed that it was necessary for Greb to show him the way to his corner.

WALKER RECUPERATES.

The youthful Walker cleared up between rounds and was fairly strong when he came out for the fifteenth frame. Greb was over-anxious which was of great assistance to Mickey, as the middleweight champion missed with many heavy swings for the chin.

In the semi-final bout, Harry Wills, chief contender for a battle with Jack Dempsey, knocked out Charlie Weinert in two rounds. Weinert was but like putty in the hands of the master sculptor. Wills directed his heavy artillery to the body.

$100,000 FOR WILLS.

Wills earned $100,000 in exactly four minutes and forty-five seconds. Wills had been guaranteed $66,000 with a privilege of accepting 20 per cent. of the gate receipts. As the receipts were estimated at close to half a million dollars, the Black Panther of New Orleans was paid almost $25,000 for each minute of fighting. This set a new record for pugilistic high finance where no world's championship was at stake.

The aged Weinert was completely outclassed by the chief contender for Jack Dempsey's championship. Wills wrecked Weinert by terrific body blows and then knocked him cold with a left hook to the jaw. Weinert struggled to his feet just after the referee completed the fatal count of ten. In the first round Weinert put up a fair fight for a couple of minutes. Wills then got started and flashed brilliantly for in the frame. The second round was all Wills. Harry first directed his attack to the body and when Weinert began to crumple he shifted his blows to the jaw and knocked Weinert into the pugilistic garbage heap.

BIG UPSET.

The big surprise of the show was the knockout of Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo in three rounds, by Dave Shade. Many expected Shade to win the decision but few believed he would be able to stop the sensational Buffalo middleweight. Slattery was knocked down three times before a towel flung from his corner acknowledged defeat.

The Walker-Greb fight was the real thriller of the show. Walker made a brilliant stand against his heavier and more experienced opponent. Going into the thirteenth round Mickey had a slight margin on Greb. Walker's terrific body punches had enabled him to more than offset Greb's whirling attack. Realizing it was necessary for him to make a great finish in order to win, Greb proved equal to the task.

Beginning with the thirteenth round he opened up and boxed at a brilliant pace. He bewildered Walker by his speed. Greb also got greater power behind his blows. The thirteenth round was Greb's by a wide margin. Followed the fourteenth session with all of it's heart-rending thrills. Greb, fearful of losing his championship, whirled around Walker, ripping savage blows to the head and body. In close the middleweight champion cut Walker to ribbons with short right handers to the face. Mickey was bleeding freely from the mouth and nose as he backed into his own corner.

The light of a real fighting man then flashed forth in Greb's eyes. His feet moved faster, while he got greater power into his blows. Suddenly, like a bolt from the blue, Greb's long left hand flashed to Mickey's chin. As Walker reeled back, a heavy right hand sock went to the jaw. For an instant Walker's arms drooped to his side and he fell back against the ropes, the blood streaming from his mouth and nose, his brain muddled and dazed. Greb, now transformed into a human tiger, stepped in close, clawing away at his rival's head and body. From one corner of the ring to another the middleweight champion pushed his opponent as he rained blow after blow upon his head and body.

WALKER ALMOST OUT.

Only once did Mickey flash. Then summoning th elast of his strength he let loose a driving left hook to the head which sent Greb back a couple of feet. Walker was virtually out at the bell.

The minute's rest between rounds cleared up Mickye's muddled brain and with Greb's over anxiousness Mickey was able to weather the middleweight's fierce attack in the closing round.

Jack Sharkey, New England heavy-weight champion, was introduced just before Walker and Greb entered the ring. Sharkey announced he was eager to meet Harry Wills. Sharkey was given a big hand by the crowd, who had read of his victories over Maloney, Rebault and Montgomery.

PICTURES ILLUSTRATE CONWAY'S STORY OF QUICK END OF TWO BATTLES

After Slattery was knocked down three times in the third round, a towel flung from Slattery's corner ended the contest. Right-hand punches to the jaw were what did the heavy damage. The first time Slattery went down he took the benefit of the count of six. On the second knockdown the referee counted nine before the Buffalo youth struggled to his feet. On the third knockdown Slattery took a six count. As he got up his chief second threw in a towel and the bout was over. Shade's victory by a knockdown was one of the biggest boxing surprises of the year.

As the first round ended, Wills drove Weinert to ropes and pounded him unmercifully. Wills shoved Weinert out of the ring. In the second Wills hooked a hard left to body. Wills hit low while in close and was warned. Wills shoved Weinert away and smashed him with a left to the head. Weinert got over two hooks. Wills came back with a left to jaw that knocked Weinert flat on his back. Weinert was in such a pitiable condition that Referee Purdy stopped the massacre. It took 1 minute and 45 seconds of this round to end the slaughter.

NO. CAMBRIDGE DROPS OUT OF 'TWI' LEAGUE

North Cambridge is the latest club to withdraw from the "Twi" League circuit.

The "Canucks" raised "quits" at the weekly meeting of the organization last evening, and immediately after the resignation was accepted, Manager Dan Leahy signed up to manage the Lawrence club during the second half.

While the withdrawal of one or more clubs was expected at the meeting, the dropping out of the Leahymen, three-time winners of the "Twi" championship, came as the biggest of surprises to even those close to league affairs.

YACHTSMEN IN FOR BUSY FOURTH

With fair weather predicted for the holiday, the yachtsman along the New England coast should look forward to plenty of thrills on tomorrow. In the morning all hands will be ready at the Corinthian Yacht Club at Marblehead for the all-day show.

This year Frederick W. Wead will be at the head of the regatta committee, and this able gentleman has plenty to offer the members both in events and prizes. Cohasset Yacht Club has billed a water carnival for the members and younger folks. During the morning session swimming races for girls and boys will be held. This is to be followed by a race for the new baby knockabouts. Many of these will be handled by youngsters who have grown out of the kindergarten class.

Most of the racing of the day will take place about Minot's Light amid the ledges, where the water is considerably rough. There is always a brilliant card of events at this organization on holidays.

Duxbury folks are looking forward for the fair holiday weather with many attractive runs about the harbor waters with last year's "Bugs" and this year's "Ducks."

RUNYON SAYS

The Ladies in Boxing. They Have Influence. Benny Leonard's Mother. Jack Dempsey's Wife. Mrs. Wills' Advice.

By Damon Runyon

THE ladies, God Bless 'Em, seem to be exerting a more or less marked influence upon what someone many years ago profoundly termed The Manly Art of Self-Defense.

Take the matter of this immaterial title. It may be excused on the ground that he had never seen Quentin Romero Rojas in pugilistic action.

Damon Runyon

Benny Leonard, lightweight champion of the world, retired from business after devoting thirteen of his twenty - nine years of life to chin - chopping, stating that his mother desired his retirement.

The most captious critic could scarcely carp at this noble response to the call of filial duty, however belated the answer might appear. As long as Leonard remains retired he would be a mean man indeed who would aim the digit of suspicion at his motives, or sentiment, or sincerity.

JACK DEMPSEY got himself married, and rumor runs that one of several reasons why he isn't going to fight any more is that his wife objects. The other reasons are unimportant, as any married man will tell you.

"What mah wife doan lak, Ah es' nat'ch'ly hate," as the colored man remarked.

Thus, two of our most notable champions seem to be removed from the field of their sincerest endeavor as a result of feminine influence, and it is not for the writer to say that this influence in these cases is not all for the best. It generally is.

THE difference in fiancees of a third lady tends in a slightly different direction. This is Mrs. Charles Weinert, wife of the celebrated "Newark Adonis."

The Adonis, in other days, was one of the gayest blades of the Newark cabarets, where they used to come mighty gay at that. He spent several years distributing one of the most promising careers the pugilistic game has observed in twenty years through the nighttime nooks of his home town. In New York we call them deadfalls.

The thing that was bound to happen happened. The Adonis got so he couldn't lick your littlest boy. His was a very sad case. Some folks shed tears about it. Then the Adonis got married.

WE next hear of him whanging some pretty fair fighters all over Jersey rings. Finally he whanged old Luis Angel Firpo, the not-so-Wild Bull of the Pampas, at which point it became necessary to bring the Adonis well forward as an object lesson in moral and physical turpitude, also in matrimony.

Mrs. Weinert had wrought this wonder, it was said. It was also said she had shown the Adonis the error of his way, or at least had convinced him of the error thereof. They left out the most interesting part by not saying just how she convinced him. Different wives have different systems.

JACK COOMBS BECOMES A THREE-TIME UNCLE

Rochester, N. H., July 3.—Jack Coombs, former Athletics' pitcher, now in charge of a semi-pro team at Kennebunk, Me., became an uncle three times, when his brother, Harry Coombs of this city, sent him the news that triplets, all girls, had arrived.

Time Is Short for This Week's Race

There is mighty little time left in which to get in line for the second weekly award of the capital prize in the Boston Evening American's masked ballplayers' identity contest.

Letters accompanying the photo in today's paper are the last that are eligible in the second weekly competition. But, a third race for the capital prize opens bright and early Monday.

This newspaper will not publish Saturday, so this week's race is a five-day and not a six-day affair. The winner of the capital prize will be announced next Wednesday.

Each week until further notice there will be, in addition to the daily award of five pairs of tickets for the earliest and neatest correct identification of the masked ball players, a weekly capital prize. This prize means a grandstand seat for the rest of the season at one of the local parks.

This capital prize will be awarded to the fan who wins one of the identity prizes and who, in addition, sends with the prize-winning identification the best and neatest 100-word letter on the subject announced herein.

The letter, which must be written to put contestants in the running for the capital prize, must this week,

PEMBERTON INN ATTRACTIONS PILING UP

Masked Countess to Remain Another Week; Noted Dancer Also on Bill

Attractions are piling up at Pemberton Inn so fast that it is difficult to keep track of them. In the first place, there has been so great an interest in "The Masked Countess" and such curiosity manifested as to the identity of this song bird from the Milan, Paris and London opera that she has been induced to remain another week.

A new feature of the musical comedy revue, starting tomorrow night, will be Elizabeth Brown, premiere ballroom dancer, assisted by Dan Moarti, late of George White's "Scandals." Miss Brown will be remembered by the many Bostonians who Winter at Miami, Fla., as the terpsichorean star of the Casino. She had the distinction of dancing with the Prince of Wales at Pratt's Town House during his recent visit to America. Before her stellar dancing appearances at the Casino in Havana, and at Clro's in Paris and London she was a featured dancer in "Molly Darling" at the Liberty Theatre in New York and in "Tickle Me" in Boston.

Ray Stewartson's Symphonic Jazz Orchestra continues to supply the accompaniment for the revue as well as the dance numbers for the dinner guests.

The innovation this season is a special late boat back to Boston, leaving Pemberton Inn at midnight.

NIGHT AIR MAIL WILL BE SUCCESS, OFFICIALS SAY

Chicago, July 3 (A.P.)—Expressing entire satisfaction with the result of the initial trip of the overnight air mail service between Chicago and New York, postal officials here said the service in a short time would have a more widespread use.

Indications were that at least one New York daily newspaper may take advantage of the air mail to rush its Chicago circulation here. One package of newspapers was included in the mail consignment reaching Chicago from New York.

50 GIRLS, INDEPENDENCE PILGRIMS, BANQUETTED

New York, July 3 (A.P.)—Fifty seven girls, representing all parts of the country, who were elected members of the Independence pilgrimage for their part in the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation drive, were given a farewell dinner at the Hotel Roosevelt before their departure for France on the Leviathan Saturday.

DECK HAND FALLS FROM PROVINCETOWN BOAT

Just as the Dorothy Bradford, the Provincetown boat, was swinging toward her berth at Long Wharf early last evening, Herman Verbel of Chile, a deck hand, fell overboard. Verbel lost his balance while opening a port hole in the forward part of the boat and fell into the water. He was picked up by a small power boat immediately and identified man.

than have been killed in all the United States by earthquakes in 100 years.

WILLIAM G. McADOO, lately Secretary of the Treasury, adopted by California and settled in that blessed country, telegraphs: "All Californians appreciate condemning foolish exaggeration about Santa Barbara's earthquake, first since 1812, 113 years ago, and probably the last until another century has passed.

"Loss of life was small, much less than that caused by recent Middle West tornado and Eastern heat wave. Santa Barbara will emerge more beautifully inviting than it has ever been."

THAT'S the truth. And this is the BEST TIME TO GO TO CALIFORNIA, first, because you will find there the finest Summer climate in the world, and second, because you might now pick up an unusually good real estate bargain. See and travel over California's 2,000 miles of fine roads.

MRS. MARY ANN BULLEN, past 105, tells reporters the only advice she can give is, "Just to go on living."

And that, unfortunately, is what most of us do. As we drift past fifty, sixty, seventy and on toward one hundred and realize that it doesn't make much difference whether we "go on living" or not, life becomes dreary. And you have a friendly feeling for the old Greek philosopher who killed himself after he had stumbled and fallen, leaving his class in old age, unwilling to live an imperfect life.

To a wise man the greatest gift is death, giving another a chance, once he knows that he is past his best.

TO HIM that hath shall be given, and even the follies of the rich turn into profit. Mr. Huntington built Huntington's folly at the southeast corner of Fifty-seventh street and Fifth avenue, in New York. It cost $1,500,000 and has just been sold for $4,000,000 to Mr. Schulte, who knows more about real estate than Darwin knew about monkeys or earthworms.

Cornelius Vanderbilt built his folly on the northwest corner of Fifty-seventh street and Fifth avenue. It cost him $2,000,000, and is now sold by his widow for $7,000,000 to Maurice Heckscher, who plans to build a 52-story hotel on it.

WITH LIGHTS shining along the road, Uncle Sam's flying mail ships go by night between New York and Chicago. That is progress. And, because it means development of the flying ship, it means safety for the nation. Credit Postmaster-General New and President Coolidge.

NEW ZEALAND SPLIT ON RUM FOR U. S. SAILORS

London, July 3 (A.P.).—A Wellington, New Zealand, dispatch to the Daily Mail says there is a controversy there on the question of whether the official entertainments in honor of the United States fleet should include alcoholic liquors. The prohibitionists contend that the dry law of the United States should rule but public opinion favors the customary hospitality. The decision will probably be left to the admiral commanding the visiting fleet.

BIG CONVENTION AT FALL RIVER SEPT. 4-7

Y. M. and Y. W. H. A.'s to Send More Than 500 Delegates to Discuss Policies

Many novel features will mark the fifteenth annual convention of the associated organizations of the Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association of New England, which will be held in Fall River September 4, 5, 6 and 7.

More than 500 delegates representing the various units at the conference will attend the business sessions.

* * *

Religious services will open the convention on Friday night and Saturday morning. In the evening a reception will welcome the hundreds of representatives to informal acquaintance and good fellowship.

The actual business of the convention will begin Sunday and last through the afternoon, with just enough time off for luncheon. A banquet will be held Sunday night.

* * *

A symposium of the various phases of the work now in operation will be presented and well-known and favorite Boston men will participate in the discussions. These questions are to be presented for discussions:

Palestine and the Youth Movement, Youth and Community Centers, Associate and Local Finances, Finances of Constituent Organizations, Zionism and Its Relation to Y. M. and Y. W. H. A. Work and Work of the Y. M. and Y. W. H. A. and Its Relation to Other Communal Organizations will be but a few of the important issues on hand.

* * *

The Associated Convention Committee is as follows: Lewis Goldberg, Jacob L. Weisman, Albert Hurwitz, George E. Gordon, Elihu A. Hirshonson, Dora Epstein and Dr. Anna Mintz.

A feature of the convention will be the field day. For the women there will be sack run, potato race, three-legged race, egg race, obstacle race and 100-yard dash. Similar events are scheduled for the men.

Boston men and women delegates who would like to enter into the field day events are asked to write to O. H. Silevitch, No. 176 Pleasant street, Fall River, and Lillian Shapiro, No. 456 Hope street, Fall River, respectively.

POPE SIGNALLY HONORS U. S. PRIEST

Monsignor Eugene S. Burke to Have Charge of North American College in Rome

Greater Boston Catholics, who made the Holy Year pilgrimage to Rome in the early Spring with Cardinal O'Connell have heard with pleasure the announcement that the Pope has appointed the Right Rev. Monsignor Eugene S. Burke to the rectorate of the North American college in the Eternal City.

The Boston pilgrims on their visit to Rome first came into contact with the newly appointed rector when they visited the Vatican to obtain their audience with the Holy Father.

Monsignor Burke acted as master of ceremonies in the Hall of the Consistory where the party had assembled to await the Papal visit and was highly lauded for his efficient and courteous help in expediting the task of Pope Pius in making the rounds of the large halls to bestow his benediction on each individual.

On two other occasions, during the attendance of the Boston pilgrimage at the Papal mass in the Vatican, and on the day the party was received at the North American college, Monsignor Burke was very much in evidence to smooth the paths of the visitors.

His appointment to the rectorate of the college was recommended by Cardinals O'Connell of Boston, Dougherty of Philadelphia, Hayes of New York and Archbishop Curley of Baltimore.

JURY FINDS HATCHET SLAYER IS GUILTY

Newark, N. J., July 3 (A.P.).—William Martin of Bloomfield was found guilty of murder in the first degree for the hatchet slaying of his daughter Mona, 13, last Spring.

The jury brought in their verdict after five and a half hours of deliberation.

The defence had asked for a verdict of murder in the second degree.

Walks Five Miles With Peas for Coolidge

Swampscott, July 3.—Charles N. Wormstead, seventy-two, of Lynnhurst, walked five miles to present President Coolidge with a half bushel of peas which he raised in his little truck garden. He said he wanted the President and Mrs. Coolidge to have fresh peas for the Fourth.

"I have nine sons and twenty grandchildren," Wormstead told the reporters. "Myself and my sons, everyone of them, will vote for Calvin Coolidge as long as he runs for office."

MAN, WIFE, SON, BEATEN IN COAL STRIKE AREA

Glace Bay, N. S., July 3.—Albert Blois, his wife, and son were beaten by a number of men who entered their house on Highland street in the coal strike area.

Another house on the same street was stoned by a party of men, numbering more than fifteen.

Two men, Dan O'Handley and Francis Gillis, were arrested.

The house of a British Empire Steel Corporation official was stoned at Dominion No. 1, but the crowd dispersed when provincial police, supported by dragoons, arrived.

Francis Degasat, twenty-one, and Raiule O'Leary, seventeen, of Marconi Towers, were arrested in connection with the fire Sunday night at No. 11 colliery, which did damage estimated at more than $150,000. This made four arrests bearing on the disorders and burnings which have been taking place in the coal areas for the last two weeks.

Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, has decided to visit the mining area again. The strike has settled down to a long struggle. Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Premier-elect of Nova Scotia, has had a conference with Mr. Murdock at Ottawa over the Cape Breton situation.

APE TRIAL HALTS TENNESSEE ELECTION

Caillaux May Come to U. S. to Settle Debt Problem

Etta Shaw propounds her plan to Sally. Sally, unconscious of danger, agrees.

Posed by Louise Grooty, star of "No, No, Nanette," and Miss Edna Whistler of the same company.

SALLY MEREDITH, nervy niece of M. FREDERICK LASALLE, war gas inventor, is intrusted with the secret of opening the red lacquer case containing the formula sought by spies of rival governments.

THE MARKED HAND appears at a window as Sally and her uncle confer. Sally, frightened, but brave, fruitlessly searches for the owner of the hand. That night the red lacquer case is stolen and Lasalle mysteriously disappears. The case is so constructed that the formula is destroyed if opened by one not in the secret.

MAJOR BILL ARMITAGE, seven years previously the sweetheart of Sally, appears in search of Lasalle. Unexpected meeting renews acquaintance, but Sally is coy and Bill blunders. At Smuggler's Leap Bill and Sally find Lasalle's fountain pen, mute evidence which adds to the fears of Bill. Sally clings to hope.

DETECTIVE WILLIAMS enters the mystery and takes up the trail of the stolen case. Sally is forlorn and Bill longs to comfort her. In fact he does, but Sally breaks away.

WOMAN OF MYSTERY asks Sally to open case. Reveals herself as one of the conspirators.

GOGGLED TERROR tries to force Sally to open case after the Woman of Mystery fails. She defies him and laughs at his threats. He foils her attempt to see his face and gets away. A bogus telegram lures Sally to London and delivers her into the hands of her enemies.

Read on and enjoy this wonderful story of love and mystery.

BECAUSE Sally met Etta Shaw when she expected to see Bill she was annoyed at first. Then, yearning to see and be with someone she knew, she felt better about Etta. Sally felt that she should telephone Bill anyway and asked Etta to wait.

Miss Shaw was most amiable about waiting. It appeared that she also felt it to be an age since she had seen Sally and had a good talk.

"Life's so interesting just now, don't you think so?" she said. "So full of movement and development; such wonderful new ideas abroad! Don't you think so, Sally darling?"

Sally disengaged herself, entered a telephone booth, rang up the Waldorf Office, gave the number of Bill's extension, and received a rather serious shock.

Miss Shaw, waiting outside heard her say, "What?" in tones of sharp incredulity, and then "Called out of town suddenly? What? You don't know where he's gone? Are you sure he's out of town? Quite sure? Do you know at all when he'll be back? Not today? You're certain of that? Oh—no, there's no message, no, thank you very much, except perhaps you might say that Miss Meredith rang up."

Sally came out of the booth looking pale and bewildered.

"Plans any clearer, dear?" asked Miss Shaw.

Sally turned to her with relief. It was something not to be alone in this crowd which might at any moment give up the man in goggles.

"Well," she said, frowning a little, "I'm afraid my plans have all gone to bits. I came up to see someone on business, and they've gone out of town for the day; so really and truly, I suppose, I'd better just get something to eat at the station and go home again."

"Oh, but how dull!" said Etta Shaw. Her voice was pitched rather high. It produced an effect of bright monotony which the stress she laid upon many of her words hardly served to break.

"Yes, it is rather," said Sally, "but I don't really want to shop, and I expect I'd better be getting home."

"Oh, but you can't, not when your're actually here. Come and lunch with me at my club. Whatever happens, you must have lunch."

"But you?" said Sally.

"I was going there, anyhow, I've got a really delightful plan, in my head, only I won't tell you about it until we get to the club. I think we'll take a taxi. I've got the car up in town, but it's having something done to it and won't be ready till half-past four—tiresome, but, of course, I don't really want it today."

Sally was still rather bewildered. She followed Etta, partly because of that vague inclination to stay with someone that she knew, and partly because she was hungry and the idea of having lunch was a pleasing one.

As they drove away and Etta went on talking, Sally began to experience feelings of extreme resentment against Bill. To fail her twice was really too much. If he imagined for one moment that he could just scend her telegrams whenever he felt inclined, and make appointments only to break them—well, Sally thought she could trust herself to put Major Armitage firmly in his proper place. "If anyone is going to do anything of that sort, it'll be me, not him," she thought vigorously, if ungrammatically. She gave a little determined nod of the head.

BOY RISKS LIFE FOR BABY

Firemen Forced to Extricate Crushed Form From Between Two Autos

No finer courage, no cooler daring was ever displayed in an emergency than that of eleven-year-old Robert Steele of No. 45 Polk street, Charlestown, who almost gave his life to save two-year-old Dorothy Burton of No. 174 Bedford street, Charlestown, from a runaway truck.

Robert was playing with several other youngsters when the frightened cries of the little girl attracted his attention to the driverless machine.

Although warned by the family physician several times to shun excitement because of a heart ailment, Robert never hesitated, but leaped to the runningboard of the runaway car. The boy picked the child from the seat and handed her into the arms of one of his playmates, who ran along beside the truck.

WEDGED BETWEEN CARS.

Just as he was about to leap from the machine himself the truck crashed into a parked automobile. The boy was so firmly wedged between the two machines that firemen from station 2 resorted to acetylene torches to extricate him from his perilous position.

It was Robert's own suggestion that brought the firemen. After citizens struggled in vain nearly fifteen minutes to free him, Robert surprised them by calmly suggesting that they "send for the firemen." "They'll get me out of this easy," he added confidently.

DIRECTS RESCUE.

After the firefighters from Station 2 arrived Robert continued in the role of self-reliance. He directed the firemen to cut away the running board of the truck and the side of the other machine.

Sections of both machines were cut away before the boy was released, about forty-five minutes after he was pinned between them.

Rushed to the Homeopathic Relief Hospital, Robert made good his contention that he was "all right."

Physicians found nothing more serious the matter with him than a few scrapes, contusions and bruises about the lower part of his body and legs.

Robert's sister, Dorothy, watched while the firemen struggled to free the boy.

The runaway truck was in charge of John Burton, brother of the rescued baby. How the machine started off without a driver has not been explained.

WELLFLEET WOMAN DIES MONTH AFTER AUTO CRASH

Mrs. Cassia Harding, seventy-six years old, of Wellfleet, died in Lynn Hospital from injuries suffered more than a month ago, when an automobile in which she was a passenger crashed into a tree on "dead man's curve" in Lynnfield.

Mrs. Harding had been visiting a family at No. 9 Mapleton street, Lynn. Her daughter, Mrs. Nemiah Newcomb, lives at No. 45 Sachem street, this city. Funeral services will be Sunday at 2 o'clock at the funeral home of Frederick W. Young on Johnson street, Lynn, with burial in Wellfleet Monday.

S-19 TRIAL FINDINGS SENT TO WASHINGTON

Portsmouth, N. H., July 3.—The naval court martial board which since Tuesday at the Navy Yard has been trying Lieutenant Alexander S. Edward of Newport, R. I., officer of the deck of the submarine S-19 which went ashore January 13 at Nauset Beach, Cape Cod, will send its findings to Washington to be interviewed by the Judge Advocate with recommendations for sentence.

Worker Built Up $23,000 Estate on J. D.'s Tips

Tarrytown, N. Y., July 3 (A.P.)—The shining new dimes and dollars of John D. Rockefeller, with advice to save money, helped build up a $23,000 estate left by Byron O'Loughlin, aged railroad crossing gatekeeper.

O'Laughlin lived in a box car at the Pocantico crossing for 14 years. Mr. Rockefeller, who lives here, passing in his automobile frequently gave him dimes and sent him $10 for Christmas. O'Loughlin died the other day. A daughter, Mrs. John Foley of Long Island City, N. Y., is his only heir.

Aged Home Inmate and Girl Clerk Testify Against Deposed Official

John J. Fitzgerald, dismissed recently as a member of the Medford board of public welfare failed to make an accounting of money paid as board by an aged inmate of the Medford City Home, according to testimony presented before the Medford board of aldermen.

The deposed official is seeking reinstatement following his removal from office by Mayor Richard H. Coolidge and the rather startling evidence was offered at a hearing granted by the Aldermen.

TELLS OF PAYMENTS.

William H. Phipps, eighty-year-old inmate of the City Home, and City Auditor Alexander A. Lacey offered the testimony against Fitzgerald.

Phipps, on the stand, testified that he has been an inmate of the Medford home since December, 1921, and that since that time he has regularly paid $10 for his board and lodging in the institution.

He testified that he paid the money to Fitzgerald each month, but did not take receipts for the money.

Auditor Lacey was then called to the stand and testified that the City books showed no record of the aged inmate that he has ever paid a penny to the City for his keep.

GAVE RECEIPT FOR MONEY.

Eleanor McKenna, a clerk in the office of the welfare board, testified that after Fitzgerald had been dismissed by Mayor Coolidge, Phipps came to her and tendered the $10 in payment for his month's board. When he explained that he paid this amount regularly each month, Miss McKenna examined the records, but failed to find any entry showing that Phipps was a paying inmate of the home or that he had ever paid a penny.

Miss McKenna accepted the $10, gave the old man a receipt and then called the matter to the attention of the mayor, she testified.

The hearing at which the sensational testimony was given is the fifth that has been held on the suspension of Fitzgerald. Another hearing will be held July 15.

FAVOR WOMEN OFFICERS IN METHODIST UNION

Prediction is being freely made in Methodist circles in Greater Boston that the time is near when women will be admitted as officiary members of the local Methodist Social Union.

The impetus to breaking down the bars against admission of women to executive positions in the Union was given by the Rev. George M. Nind, D.D., of the faculty of Boston University School of Religious Education, who declared that the Union "should be modern and women should be given a fair representation therein, both in its management and on its platform."

Everett O. Fisk of Brookline, one of the Union officers, is the most recent to support Dr. Nind's suggestion, and has expressed his confidence that the proposal of the Boston University professor will bear fruit in the recognition of women in the councils of the Union.

COMMISSION TO ATTEND PARLEY

Ministers Approve American Visit This Summer; Possible Negotiations Rupture Seen

Paris, July 3 (A.P.).—The Council of Ministers today approved a plan to send a French debt commission to the United States during this Summer.

Paris, July 3 (I.N.S.).—A hint of expected rupture of the French debt negotiations before they are begun was seen in the battle of words in the Parisian Press today.

It arose over the proposal that Finance Minister Caillaux himself head the French debt mission scheduled to visit Washington. Caillaux's appointment in this capacity would meet with the approval of official Washington as an expression of the importance placed on the mission's purpose.

Le Matin and Petit Parisian approved the idea, the latter newspaper pointing out that Caillaux speaks English and is familiar with American conditions. A strong stand in opposition was taken by Verthax, political commentator in the semi-official Echo de Paris. The Finance Minister himself admitted it was possible he might go to Washington. His friends said it would depend on whether the negotiations for funding the $4,000,000,000 French debt promised to be successful.

It would be painful for Caillaux to be in Washington if it became necessary to break off negotiations, Pertinax said. He cited the "regret of a majority" of the British that Stanley Baldwin, present Premier, headed the British Debt Funding Commission to America, and added:

"The history of the last five years should make France wary. The American Congress can repudiate the funding committee's arrangement the same as the Senate repudiated President Wilson's act at Versailles, but if Caillaux give his word France would have to keep it."

Caillaux said:

"I have not made my decision, but it is within the realm of possibility that I will go to Washington during the parliamentary vacation."

TINKHAM SAVES HORSE FROM DEATH AT CAPITAL

Washington, July 3.—Sande, a Kentucky bred sorrel saddle horse, the property of Captain John H. Craige of the United States Marines, today owes his life to the kind heartedness of Representative George H. Tinkham of Boston.

Captain Craige had been ordered to Haiti and was unable to take his mount with him. Fearing the animal might fall into unworthy hands, the captain ordered the horse shot.

Representative Tinkham, who had often ridden the horse, learned of the captain's intention and offered to take the horse and see that the animal was properly cared for. His offer was accepted by the captain.

MAN AND TWO GIRLS ARE INJURED IN CRASH

The vacation plans of Malcolm Twomey and two guests, all of No. 64 Winter street, Brockton, were rudely ended early today when the machine in which they were riding suddenly left the road and crashed into a tree on Broadway near Wall street, Malden. All were rushed to the Malden City Hospital suffering from lacerations and a general shaking up.

According to the Malden police, Twomey, Susie Calkins and Charlotte Bowen left Brockton early today to pass the week-end in Maine.

NEW FURNESS-WARREN LINER IN LOWER HARBOR

Completing her maiden voyage across the Atlantic, the new Furness-Warren line steamer Newfoundland, in command of Captain R. J. Furneaux, arrived in the lower harbor from Liverpool and Belfast, by way of St. Johns and Halifax, with a number of passengers and a large freight.

GOVERNORS IN BAR HARBOR FOR FROLIC

Houlton, Me. on Board Governors' Special Train), July 3 (A.P.)—The State Executives who are making a tour of Maine after concluding their seventeenth annual session at Poland Spring were on their way today to Bar Harbor, where the final part of their program in this State will be carried out.

The train on which the Governors went north for a trip through Aroostook County left Houlton over the Bangor & Aroostook Line and passed to the tracks of the Boston & Maine Railroad at Bangor.

Today's program included some rounds of golf at the Kebo Valley Club, a yacht race from the Bar Harbor Yacht Club, in which the various Governors were to take part, and a motor drive about Mount Desert Island, including visits to the Ford and Rockefeller estates at Seal Harbor.

The Navy dirigible Shenandoah is due to reach Bar Harbor this afternoon, anchoring to the mother ship Patoka, already there. Tomorrow the plans of the party call for a flight a nthe giant dirigible over the neighboring fowns.

CHURCH ARMY WELCOMED HERE BY BISHOP BABCOCK

The Church Army, a militant evangelistic group formed within the Church of England, which is touring from New York to Canada, to urge upon the Episcopal Church in the United States the formation of a similar organization, was welcomed to Boston by Bishop Babcock at the Cathedral Church of St. Paul in a picturesque service, in which the British and United States flags were carried into the church at the head of the twenty-four members of the army group.

HEALTH CAMPS AGAIN OPENED AT ATTLEBORO

Attleboro, July 3.—Two health camps for children to receive training and diet that will help protect them from tuberculosis will open at the Bristol County Tuberculosis Hospital grounds here. This will mark the second year of the camps. About sixty children will be cared for, the boys the first month, the girls the second.

MASS MEETING TO AID REX VICTIMS

Gloucester, July 3.—Plans for a relief fund for the families of the 15 men lost when the fishing schooner Rex was run down at sea by an ocean liner, will be discussed at a mass meeting of all civic organizations in the Chamber of Commerce rooms Monday night. All organizations in Gloucester will be asked to join in the campaign.

Meanwhile, every effort is being made to find jobs for the survivors of the wreck who arrived home virtually penniless, having lost all of their personal possessions when their ill fated craft went down.

The band of survivors was to go to Lowell today to attend the funeral of their commander, Captain Thomas O. Downey, skipper of the Rex. Captain Downey was killed when the liner crashed into his schooner in the fog. His body was the only one of the 15 lost that was recovered.

EMPLOYMENT SITUATION SHOWS BIG IMPROVEMENT

The monthly report of the public employment office of the department of labor and industries shows the employment situation here to have been somewhat better in June than it was in May, and considerably better than it was in June of last year.

Employers called for 1,617 persons during the month, 164 more than in May and 239 more than June of last year, the report shows. The number of persons filing during the month was 1,248, an increase of 26 over the previous month and an increase of 173 over last June. The attendance of applicants for employment during the month was 25,885, an increase of 2,238 over May and an increase of 2,470 over June, 1924.

APE TRIAL NIPS CITY ELECTION

Dayton Citizens So Engrossed Over Scopes They Fail to Provide for Voting

Dayton, Tenn., July 3 (A.P.)—Dayton was too busy discussing evolution to hold an election. Polls, which were to have been opened for a bond election, remained closed.

In South Dayton, the polls were opened by men brought from Morgantown, but the North Dayton precincts shortly before noon had no voting places. Two men stationed at the polls to remain until others could be brought to assist them had vanished when their relief arrived.

Dayton, Tenn., July 3 (Universal).—Two visitors came to town today to enliven the news lull just before the storm of the evolution trial next week.

CALLED GREAT EDUCATION.

General Tom Stewart, attorney-general in charge of the prosecution of Scopes, gathered the prosecution attorneys around him in closed sessions. They discussed their line of attack and the mode of procedure, but would give out no intimation to their plans.

The other visitor, Dr. J. Calls of Oberlin, O., was native. He is the brother of J. Metcalfe, noted biologist, author of several books and professor at Oberlin College, who will be one of the witnesses for Scopes.

"The evolution trial will be a great thing for popular education," Dr. Metcalfe declared. "The whole world is looking at this affair which has made the descent of man the most talked of topic of the day.

NEWSPAPER MEN FLOCKING IN

"The public will get real knowledge of the subject from the newspapers. A greater number of people than can be estimated are trying to find out just what evolution is. Most people will be surprised to discover that the outcome of the trial will be to strengthen Christianity and show that there is no conflict between religion and real science."

Dr. Metcalfe's prediction that the world would know about the trial through the press was borne out today by an additional influx of newspaper men. The clan up to date numbered no more than a half dozen during the last two weeks. Now there are at least a score of scribes and photographers in Dayton. The next few days will see this number greatly magnified, as those holding the 100 or more reservations drift in.

Scopes Trial May Be Taken Into U. S. Court

New York, July 3 (AP)—The New York World says today that counsel for the defense in the case of Tennessee anti-evolution law were reported to have suddenly changed their plans and to contemplate transferring the trial from the State to the Federal Court.

In order to take the trial away from the State Court at Dorton on July 10, the attorneys for John T. Scopes, the school teacher defendant, will ask the United States Court to enjoin the State of Tennessee from enforcing the anti-evolution law on the ground that it is unconstitutional. In this event, the case would probably be tried in the Federal Court in Nashville.

The change in plans is said to have been made at a secret conference of the five attorneys. Those taking part were Bainbridge Colby, Clarence Darrow, Dudley Field Malone, John R. Neal of Knoxville, chief counsel, and Arthur Garfield Mays. Mr. Neal, Mr. Malone and Mr. Mays refused to discuss the conference, and the others could not be reached.

FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

I had just taken my seat, alone, at the breakfast table in the magnificent Olympic Hotel, Seattle, when two forceful looking youngish men came over, introduced themselves and immediately fired this at me:

"Did you hear that keynoter's speech yesterday at the (National) Foreign Trade) convention? What d'ye think of him—the gall of him? D'ye know that he started in at the far South to picture all the Cities along the Pacific—and that he never once mentioned Los Angeles—Los Angeles, mind you, the biggest of them all, the fastest growing of them all, the most important! What has Los Angeles with its busiest harbor on the whole Pacific Coast—Los Angeles, absolutely the biggest city skirting the Pacific Ocean either on this side or in the Orient. And that bird never even mentioned it. What d'ye think of that?"

There you have the true Los Angeles spirit—ready to defend the city at the drop of the hat against all slighters, all critics, all scoffers, all belittlers. Could you fancy a blase New Yorker doing anything like loyal, eager Angelenos did? And don't you admire their ardor? They recalled to my mind St. Paul's warning to his persecutors: I am a Roman citizen."

* * *

Here are some Los Angeles facts: Los Angeles, in the years 1913-1924, bank increase in its bank clearings has been 585 per cent. In 1924, supposed to be a bad year, there was an increase over 1923, the peak year of expansion. I'm told that 1925 will show still further increase.

Bank deposits in ten years increased 473 per cent.

In building permits expansion has been too fantastic to express in percentages. They built more in a month now than they did in the whole of 1915.

Manufacturing output multiplied four or five fold in ten years.

Frank P. Kent, Baltimore publisher, recently wrote of Los Angeles:

"Beyond doubt, it is destined to be the greatest city in the country—if not in the world. It requires no gift of prophecy to foresee the time when Los Angeles will pass New York and Chicago. One has but to look at the record of the last twenty-five years to believe anything of the future."

SWITCHING FROM OILS TO RAILROADS IS SEEN

Indifference of the oils to highly favorable news on oil companies in this country, in the sharp decline in production of crude oil in March, is attributed to switching from the oils to the rails. When this runs its course, is reasoned here, the oil stocks' advance is confidently expected as the public is looked upon as being slow to appreciate the significance of such a sharp drop in Mexican production as 219,000 barrels in the week ended June 27. This is explained, in large part, by the new conservation policy by Pan-American, facilitated by buying oil in Sinclair, Arkansas, where it is decidedly bullish on stocks of oil companies operating in this country.

U. S. RUBBER TREES COVER 75,000 ACRES

Although other manufacturers have their own plantations in Sumatra and Malaya, none of them is in such an envious position in this respect as United States Rubber with its 75,000 acres of rubber-bearing trees. Even though the world's shortage should develop, United States Rubber has taken precautions which insure it a quantity of rubber that can hardly be equaled by any area developed by other American manufacturers or producers. It is understood that United States Rubber acquires from its own properties about 45 p. c. of its total annual crude rubber requirements.

ONTARIO MINES PAY BIG JULY DIVIDENDS

Dividends from gold and silver mining companies of northern will reach $1,469,873 for July. Dome, Hollinger and Wright-Hargreaves, together, will disburse $1,007,167. Dividends paid or payable before August by mines of northern Ontario for first seven months of 1925 will total $5,377,667. Porcupine district will contribute $3,452,500; Cobalt and South Lor $1,212,566 and Kirkland Lake $712,500.

STATISTICAL DEPARTMENTS FIND FAVOR

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor

Boston brokerage houses are paying increasing attention to the maintenance of statistical departments. Customers nowadays are apt no merely to ask "Is this stock or bond good?" but also to call for the figures and statistics that will tell the story. A statistician who is an easy thing for any reasonably intelligent person to understand. To study about what you are buying before you buy it is a course which commends itself to those who stop to think.

* * *

I estimate that upwards of fifty houses in Boston maintain worth while statistical departments today. By the way, L. M. Atherton of Schirmer, Atherton & Co. tells me James Philip Wall has just become associated with his house, to take charge of its statistical department.

* * *

When Henry Ford arrived in Boston on his way to Bar Harbor, Me., the news appeared via a bulletin service in a Boston Stock Exchange house boardroom before it happened to be at the time. A discussion arose as to who was Mr. Ford's closest friend in Boston. I heard the opinion mentioned that Elmer Howe, Back Bay antique merchant, probably answered the description. Mr. Howe and Mr. Ford, I understand, became acquainted through mutual interest in the great Theodore Roosevelt.

E. J. Phillips, Providence, counsel for New Haven Road here, has filed with the Rhode Island Public Utilities Commission application for permission to operate five bus lines over roads of Rhode Island. The lines, between Providence and Boston, Worcester, New Bedford, Fall River and Newport, are expected to be in operation by July 15, and will be purely interstate for the present. The bus operation is not being undertaken with the purpose in mind of ultimately train service, he said. The business will be run as a joint undertaking with the New England Transportation Company, a subsidiary of the New Haven road. The Utilities Commission set July 8 at 10 a. m., daylight time, for hearing on the applications, as well as for hearings upon several other bus line applications filed within the past two days.

BOSTON TRADE OUTLOOK IS IMPROVED

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston:

The business outlook is improving, and merchants are looking forward to better conditions in the Fall. While activity in the manufacturing and wholesale lines has been below normal, and forward orders not up to expectations, sales at retail for June made the best showing of any month this year.

Reports of curtailment on the part of the cotton mills has resulted in a better demand for cotton piece goods. During the past two weeks sales of print cloth at Fall River have reached 75,000 pieces, or more than double the average for several weeks. Forward orders are also increasing; prices have changed but little.

More inquiries are being received for cotton yarns; the demand has not, as yet, become active, though prices have a tendency towards firmness.

The wool market is firm, and prices are still increasing. There is more activity in all lines. Worsteds and worsted yarns are pickling. Dress goods are selling better, but the chief demand for yarns is from the knitting trade, which is active.

Building permits this year to June in 39 Massachusetts cities amounted to $84,188,800, which was an increase of $14,383,000, as compared with the first five months of 1924. Lime, cement and brick are also selling well, with not much change in price.

Wholesale shoe concerns report sales for May 47 per cent. ahead of May, 1924. Activity in the leather market has not increased, but prices are firmer. The hide market is active, and prices are advancing. Tanning materials are irregular. Chemicals are slow and dyestuffs inactive.

Jewelry is slow, with little activity in sight until the Fall; stocks are moderate, and buying conservative.

Wholesale grocers report a decrease in sales for the month of May from May last year of 1.6 per cent. In June they showed a slight gain.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MART QUOTATIONS RUN LOWER

Liverpool, England, July 3 (A.P.)—The severe fall in New York cotton futures yesterday on an especially bearish government crop report wr e reflected here in a 48-point drop under realizations and withdrawal of support.

The market was comparatively quiet for the first half hour today, but around noon the demand became steadier on small re-purchases, under which prices improved a few points.

VICTOR TALKING TO PASS JULY DIVIDEND

Victor Talking Machine is sending a letter to its stockholders, advising them that the board of directors has decided not to declare any dividend for the past quarter, the dividend usually being paid July 15. The letter says that the company has started a program of production of an improved product which will require additional expenditures and it is deemed advisable to conserve its cash resources.

COTTON FUTURES MIXED IN NEW YORK DEALINGS

Cotton futures were mixed in New York pre-holiday trading. July sold at 23.07, up 4 points; October 23.06, off .07; December 23.05, off .18.

DINNER FOR THE FOURTH

TODAY I am going to talk about dinner for the 4th and it's going to be something a little different from the proverbial salmon and green peas, for I think most of us indulged in those on the 17th of June.

I wonder how you will like the following menu:

FOURTH OF JULY DINNER

Fruit Cocktail

Iced Tomato Bisque with Whipped Cream

Radishes

Stuffed Shoulder of Veal, Roasted

Potato Souffle

Green Corn on the Cob (canned)

Molded Spinach, French Dressing

Washington Ice Cream

Flag Cake Coffee

I think you will know how to make practically everything on this menu with the possible exception of the Washington ice cream, the flag cake, the molded spinach and the potato souffle, so these are the recipes that I am going to give you:

RECIPE NO. 1364

FLAG CAKE.

2-3 cup sugar.

½ cup shortening.

2-3 cup milk.

½ teaspoon salt.

1 2-3 cups flour.

2 teaspoons baking powder.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Bobbie and His Pa

By William F. Kirk

YESTERDAY a man from the steam bring a old sofy in our house, the sticking was last out of it like the stuffing in my bestest glove & the wood was all slivers on the edges & the sofy looked terrice.

Ware did that junk come from? sed Pa.

Junk? sed Ma. I like that. That is a Antieck, sed Ma.

I will tell the world it is a Antieck, sed Pa. I bet Antony & Cleopatry spooned on that sofy, sed Pa.

That is why I prize it so, sed Ma, & just think, it was only one hundred dollars, sed Ma.

Do you mean to say you slipped the yegg a century note for that thing? sed Pa.

Such langwidge, sed Ma, what do you mean?

I mean did you really pay a hundred dollars for that? sed Pa. That gives me a terrifical pane in the pocketbook, sed Pa.

Good artickels cum high, sed Ma, new merit cools nuthin.

But that sofy is reddy for the scrap heap, sed Pa. What a shameful waist of munny, sed Pa.

Deer me, sed Ma, if you are going to hat a home storm I will send it back at once, sed Ma.

If you doant send it back I will throw it out in the back yard, sed Pa.

Then I will send it back, sed Ma. I make half known better than to buy anything Artiestick around here, sed Ma.

Do you call that Rock of a Sofy artiestick? sed Pa.

Certinply it is Artistick, sed Ma, look at the deer faced old silk upholstery, sed Ma. Think what old bowes sat there was that sofy, who nos, sed Ma, about the time the Ty Wite Intrigan, sed Ma.

You had a grand imaginashun, sed Pa, I will say that for you. Hu-bert-ine! I pay one hunred bucks for that thing we will half another Civil War, sed Pa.

Then back it goes, sed Ma, it seams to me you are slitting very fond of munny lattly, sed Ma. I notis it makes a big differce who spends the hunnerd dollars around here, sed Ma. Last week you paid a hunnerd dollars to join a silly old golf club, sed Ma.

But I will git some good out of that, sed Pa, & what good will you ever git out of looking at that junk?

Doant you dare call that junk agenin, sed Ma, that is a rare old Anteek. It looked so Quaint in that stoar window yesterday, sed Ma.

Yes, sed Pa, & tomorrow it will be back in that stain stoar window, as Quaint as ever, sed Pa.

Then Ma sniffed & went in the other room. I think we shall get a hunnerd dollar's loss to me, sez Anteeks was you doant even know what Anteek means.

Off To The Farm

"An unexpected afternoon off," Carl explained, grinning like a schoolboy at Thanksgiving. "Can't we go to a show and then have dinner somewhere?"

"It's certainly. You remember surely, that I'm leaving for the Summer on the farm I left just after the awful day of my birth. I've orders of packing to do."

"Well, I can't share your grief even though I may never come back. I'm to teach the Summer term of the school near my aunts. I don't know a thing about the country, but I'm pretty sick of the city and everybody in it."

After Carl had gone, Sarah had no grace to regret that she did not feign polite enough to make excepsion of him. Her roots, however, she felt to be back where she was born, where there must be no artificiality and social restraint.

Sarah's first impression the next day of the home she had idealized was disappointing. The house was old, unpainted, and unpicturesque, with a yard devoid of the flower gardens and spreading trees she had dreamed of. The worst shock, however, was the appearance of her aunt and the son who lived with her. They dressed, talked and acted like no one she had ever seen before.

All Was Still

After supper, Aunt Melinda and Sarah each drew a chair to the front porch, and Jake followed with another, making no pretense of offering to assist the women. Upon the distant line of mountains, a gorgeous sun was bestowing its last flare of light. The air was fresh with young, growing things and the odor of earth recently turned by the plow. All was still save the night song of a few hasty crickets.

"Oh," Sarah sighed happily, "this is what I dreamed of—peace and quiet sunsets."

"Hm!" Aunt Melinda grunted disdainfully. "I'd like to see somebody s-quin' by. Didja pick up any gossip in town today, Jake, when you went to fetch Sarah?"

For the first time Sarah saw interest flicker across the indolent face of her cousin.

"Molly Haynor's run off with a drummer who they say's married and got four children," he gloated. "Well, everybody said there warn't no good in that girl since she was caught goin' with Tim Henderson's cuss of a son." Aunt Melinda rejoined, nodding in evident delight at the choice bit of news. "What else didja hear, son?"

Sarah listened in amazement while the phlegmatic youth rolled other morsels upon his tongue. He had indeed made remarkable use of the hour spent in the village before the arrival of her train.

As the glorious month of June went its languorous way Sarah discovered that Jake and his mother lived on the store of slander provided by trips to town and such reinforcements as neighbors from time to time brought. Deciding that they saw none of the beauties about them, she found it hard to bear her disappointment in the people the country produced.

Unwelcome Advances

With the beginning of her teaching in July, she discovered a new complication in her personal affairs: her cousin, Jake, began making advances as crudely amorous as they were unwelcome.

In addition, rural teaching, with its antiquated methods of discipline, soon proved infinitely distressing. When the boys found that she disdained the rod her predecessor had left above the blackboard, they embraced a sort of lioness for which her former training left her unprepared.

One afternoon she kept the school till almost dark, reasoning tearfully, despairingly. Coming out she met two of the trustees who were coming in search of their missing sons.

"Look-a-here," one of the men began wrathfully. "These boys has got to do their work on the farms. They can't be settin' in school all day. What you need is a cowhide. Dress 'em down and that'll straighten 'em out. Those easy city-fied ways won't go here."

Sarah swallowed hard and buttied home. On the trail that shortened her way, she encountered Jake, who appeared to be waiting for her.

"Any trouble, Sarah?" he asked heavily, his face as stupid and expressionless as a sheep's.

In a moment Sarah realized that she was being stifled in a crude embrace. Sick with disgust, she pushed Jake away.

"I hate you!" she gasped. "Don't you dare touch me again."

Then she ran home and up to her room. For the first time she was wondering if the city were not after all a pretty good sort of place.

At supper, it was quite apparent that Jake had told Aunt Melinda of the rebuff. Leaving the unsociable pair as soon as she could, Sarah surprised herself by answering one of Carl Hankins' letters—the first she had taken any notice of. It was a bit of comfort to have a friend far enough away to be used as a safety valve. So she poured out her troubles, and the next day, feeling somewhat better, mailed the letter.

Grew Worse

After that, matters grew steadily worse. She could not bring herself to use the cowhide suggested, and it appeared that her weakness was sense for the parents' siding with the children. Jake made one or two attempts at reconciliation, but Aunt Melinda, sensing her boy's grievance, remained frigid.

Then one Friday afternoon Sarah, having closed the school after the last child, turned to face Carl Hankins.

"I've got my car," he said. "Let's drive to the village, where we can get a feed and forget this holler."

Sarah's heart sang with the joy of her deliverance, but loyalty to her old friend gave a wan little flare. "I'd love to," she said, "but look how beautiful the country is, and then remember that only man is vile."

"I'm not looking at the country. You're beautiful enough for me."

So, like two children playing truant, they ran away for their holiday, returning after the country folk were in bed. Carl drove back to the village inn and Sarah stole to her room as noiselessly as possible.

The next morning Aunt Melinda and Jake were both deeply in debate. To save the embarrassment of progressing her relatives to Carl, Sarah ran down the road to meet the car. Together she and Carl spent a wonderful day fishing and picnicking by the stream.

When they returned that evening the flivver and two buggies were packed by Aunt Melinda's gate.

"Must be having a party in Jim honor," Carl grinned.

"Those are the equipages of the trustees," Sarah enlightened. "I am perhaps to be fired for improper conduct. Had a wonderful time, Carl. Come again some time."

She gave her hand into his big grasp and then ran up the path, trying not to dread the ordeal that was in store for her. There on Aunt Melinda's horsehair furniture sat the trustees in evident enjoyment of their solemnity. Sarah looked about her for a moment and then laughed nervously.

She Is Discharged

"Young woman," proclaimed the chairman of the board, "this ain't no time for levity. Your aunt, in accordance with her Christian duty, has informed us of your guilt's us. We ain't never before had no scandal in the school. You are discharged as a ____ immoral character, ridin' at unseemly times with suspicious strangers."

The sound of a door banged against the wall, the impact of a fist against the mouth of the trustee, a falling body carrying with it Aunt Melinda's wax flowers and their glass shade—and Sarah looked into the furious face of Carl Hankins.

"Get your things and let's get back to civilization," he ordered.

Then before the gasping audience Carl took Sarah in his arms and bore her out of the room. "Hurry," he urged. "I've got to get the license before that rube clerk goes to bed."

"I will, Sarah replied meekly, but the singing in her heart (that had begun when Carl arrived the day before had become a paean of rejoicing in her ears.

YESTERDAY a man from the steam bring a old sofy in our house, the sticking was last out of it like the stuffing in my bestest glove & the wood was all slivers on the edges & the sofy looked terrice.

Ware did that junk come from? sed Pa.

Junk? sed Ma. I like that. That is a Antieck, sed Ma.

I will tell the world it is a Anteek, sed Pa. I bet Antony & Cleopatry spooned on that sofy, sed Pa.

That is why I prize it so, sed Ma, & just think, it was only one hunnerd dollars, sed Ma.

Do you mean to say you slipped the yegg a century note for that thing? sed Pa.

Such langwidge, sed Ma, what do you mean?

I mean did you really pay a hunnerd dollars for that? sed Pa. That gives me a terrifical pane in the pocketbook, sed Pa.

Good artickels cum high, sed Ma, new merit cools nuthin.

But that sofy is reddy for the scrap heap, sez Pa. What a shameful waist of munny, sed Pa.

Deer me, sed Ma, if you are going to hat a home storm I will send it back at once, sed Ma.

If you doant send it back I will throw it out in the back yard, sed Pa.

Then I will send it back, sed Ma. I make half known better than to buy anything Artiestick around here, sed Ma.

Do you call that Rock of a Sofy artiestick? sed Pa.

Certinply it is Artistick, sed Ma, look at the deer faced old silk upholstery, sed Ma. Think what old bowes sat there was that sofy, who nos, sed Ma, about the time the Ty Wite Intrigan, sed Ma.

You had a grand imaginashun, sed Pa, I will say that for you. Hubert-ine! I pay one hunnerd bucks for that thing we will half another Civil War, sed Pa.

Then back it goes, sed Ma, it seams to me you are slitting very fond of munny lattly, sed Ma. I notis it makes a big differce who spends the hunnerd dollars around here, sed Ma. Last week you paid a hunnerd dollars to join a silly old golf club, sed Ma.

But I will git some good out of that, sed Pa, & what good will you ever git out of looking at that junk?

Doant you dare call that junk agenin, sed Ma, that is a rare old Anteek. It looked so Quaint in that stoar window yesterday, sed Ma.

Yes, sed Pa, & tomorrow it will be back in that stain stoar window, as Quaint as ever, sed Pa.

Then Ma sniffed & went in the other room. I think we shall get a hunnerd dollar's loss to me, sez Anteeks was you doant even know what Anteek means.

Off To The Farm

"An unexpected afternoon off," Carl explained, grinning like a schoolboy at Thanksgiving. "Can't we go to a show and then have dinner somewhere?"

"It's certainly. You remember surely, that I'm leaving for the Summer on the farm I left just after the awful day of my birth. I've orders of packing to do."

"Well, I can't share your grief even though I may never come back. I'm to teach the Summer term of the school near my aunts. I don't know a thing about the country, but I'm pretty sick of the city and everybody in it."

After Carl had gone, Sarah had no grace to regret that she did not feign polite enough to make excepsion of him. Her roots, however, she felt to be back where she was born, where there must be no artificiality and social restraint.

Sarah's first impression the next day of the home she had idealized was disappointing. The house was old, unpainted, and unpicturesque, with a yard devoid of the flower gardens and spreading trees she had dreamed of. The worst shock, however, was the appearance of her aunt and the son who lived with her. They dressed, talked and acted like no one she had ever seen before.

All Was Still

After supper, Aunt Melinda and Sarah each drew a chair to the front porch, and Jake followed with another, making no pretense of offering to assist the women. Upon the distant line of mountains, a gorgeous sun was bestowing its last flare of light. The air was fresh with young, growing things and the odor of earth recently turned by the plow. All was still save the night song of a few hasty crickets.

"Oh," Sarah sighed happily, "this is what I dreamed of—peace and quiet sunsets."

"Hm!" Aunt Melinda grunted disdainfully. "I'd like to see somebody s-quin' by. Didja pick up any gossip in town today, Jake, when you went to fetch Sarah?"

For the first time Sarah saw interest flicker across the indolent face of her cousin.

"Molly Haynor's run off with a drummer who they say's married and got four children," he gloated. "Well, everybody said there warn't no good in that girl since she was caught goin' with Tim Henderson's cuss of a son." Aunt Melinda rejoined, nodding in evident delight at the choice bit of news. "What else didja hear, son?"

Sarah listened in amazement while the phlegmatic youth rolled other morsels upon his tongue. He had indeed made remarkable use of the hour spent in the village before the arrival of her train.

As the glorious month of June went its languorous way Sarah discovered that Jake and his mother lived on the store of slander provided by trips to town and such reinforcements as neighbors from time to time brought. Deciding that they saw none of the beauties about them, she found it hard to bear her disappointment in the people the country produced.

Unwelcome Advances

With the beginning of her teaching in July, she discovered a new complication in her personal affairs: her cousin, Jake, began making advances as crudely amorous as they were unwelcome.

In addition, rural teaching, with its antiquated methods of discipline, soon proved infinitely distressing. When the boys found that she disdained the rod her predecessor had left above the blackboard, they embraced a sort of lioness for which her former training left her unprepared.

One afternoon she kept the school till almost dark, reasoning tearfully, despairingly. Coming out she met two of the trustees who were coming in search of their missing sons.

"Look-a-here," one of the men began wrathfully. "These boys has got to do their work on the farms. They can't be settin' in school all day. What you need is a cowhide. Dress 'em down and that'll straighten 'em out. Those easy city-fied ways won't go here."

Sarah swallowed hard and buttied home. On the trail that shortened her way, she encountered Jake, who appeared to be waiting for her.

"Any trouble, Sarah?" he asked heavily, his face as stupid and expressionless as a sheep's.

In a moment Sarah realized that she was being stifled in a crude embrace. Sick with disgust, she pushed Jake away.

"I hate you!" she gasped. "Don't you dare touch me again."

Then she ran home and up to her room. For the first time she was wondering if the city were not after all a pretty good sort of place.

At supper, it was quite apparent that Jake had told Aunt Melinda of the rebuff. Leaving the unsociable pair as soon as she could, Sarah surprised herself by answering one of Carl Hankins' letters—the first she had taken any notice of. It was a bit of comfort to have a friend far enough away to be used as a safety valve. So she poured out her troubles, and the next day, feeling somewhat better, mailed the letter.

Grew Worse

After that, matters grew steadily worse. She could not bring herself to use the cowhide suggested, and it appeared that her weakness was sense for the parents' siding with the children. Jake made one or two attempts at reconciliation, but Aunt Melinda, sensing her boy's grievance, remained frigid.

Then one Friday afternoon Sarah, having closed the school after the last child, turned to face Carl Hankins.

"I've got my car," he said. "Let's drive to the village, where we can get a feed and forget this holler."

Sarah's heart sang with the joy of her deliverance, but loyalty to her old friend gave a wan little flare. "I'd love to," she said, "but look how beautiful the country is, and then remember that only man is vile."

"I'm not looking at the country. You're beautiful enough for me."

So, like two children playing truant, they ran away for their holiday, returning after the country folk were in bed. Carl drove back to the village inn and Sarah stole to her room as noiselessly as possible.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

"I SEEM to be inclined to be flabby under the chin and also my abdomen. I would like to reduce these two parts of my body and was thinking of wearing a rubber corset and brassiere, also a chin reducer made of rubber.

"Now what I would like to know is whether you think it harmful to wear same, or whether you would advise feeling and exercise instead. I am very anxious to reduce about twenty pounds, and would like to get your advice regarding which is more beneficial between these two ways of reducing. I forgot to mention that I am a young man, unmarried. A. H."

The accumulation of fat in several parts of the body, especially under the chin and on the wall of the abdomen, is both frequent and annoying, especially to young and unmarried women.

These local accumulations of fat may be either normal or abnormal.

They are always abnormal when they occur as soft chunks of fat under the skin and in all sorts of odd localities. This is the condition called lipomatosis, or fat dropsy.

It is generally associated with irregularities of the heart, nervousness and weakness, and is always the result of disease of the thyroid gland. It is a condition that calls for careful diagnostic examination and prompt treatment.

The so-called physiologic accumulations of fat, like those of my correspondent, occur chiefly under the chin and on the abdomen and the breasts. Because for some reason there is little or no pressure in those localities to resist the deposit.

The second and logical treatment is to apply pressure, the absence of which was one of the causes of the trouble. Pressure properly applied not only tends to diminish the further deposits of fat, but promotes the absorption of fat already deposited.

It has been standard medical practice for many years to put a cold wet compress over the fat areas and hold it in place with an elastic bandage, not too tightly applied. This is best done on retiring.

When one begins the practice it should be kept up for not less than six weeks. In certain cases it should thereafter be kept up periodically, or indefinitely.

These special deposits of fat are, however, but local evidences of a general fat-making habit on the part of the system. To treat the local conditions logically you must treat them as their source, which is this fat-making tendency. This is generally done by diet. My correspondent speaks of "these two ways of treatment" as if they might be antagonistic or alternative. The thing to do is to use both.

So far as the dietetic treatment is concerned, here is a single practical hint:

Eat a quarter of a head of lettuce without oil before breakfast, dinner and supper.

That's all.

Try it for two weeks and watch your weight daily. It's easy and inexpensive.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

IT'S exactly 149 years ago tomorrow that our forefathers rang the Liberty Bell. They wanted to celebrate.

THEY did so much damage to it that we haven't been able to use it since. That's why we haven't got any liberties any more.

THEY ought to make another bell so that we could have some freedom.

THE Declaration of Independence was all right in its day. But we've got too many smart lawyers now who find loopholes in it.

THEY take all the liberty they want and give us what's left.

SOME elides put you in jail if you celebrate your independence by shooting off firecrackers.

THEY expect you to make a lot of noise by snapping your fingers.

IT'S true, you can't burn yourself, but you can throw your knuckles out of joint.

INSTEAD of firing cannons, we're supposed to clap our hands.

NEW YORK CITY is so dead on Independence Day that the wealthy people go to Europe to celebrate the 4th of July.

YOU can buy all the fire crackers you want in England.

WHAT'S A WHALE'S HEAD?

Poor fellow," I said, as I walked down to see the mammoth fish.

"Look at his head," shouted Bobby.

"He's all most ready bee."

"Pretty much," I agreed. "He's a specific whale. You know there are many varieties. But that's the kind this one is."

"Is that big head made of whalebone, Foxy Grandpa?" asked Bobby.

"His head is whalebone, all right," I laughed. "But not the kind of whalebone that ladies wear. That comes from another kind of whale."

"Wonder what's in that awful head," said Bobby.

"Wait until they start cutting him up," said Bunny.

Bobby didn't have to wait long to find out what concerned him so keenly. For the next day some fishermen who had been whaling came to the beach and started to operate on the whale who had died as soon as he got into shallow water.

Bobby could hardly come indoors to lunch he was so interested in what was going on. And when that boy forgets a meal he is interested. I am sure you know by this time from things I have told you about him.

"That whale is seventy feet long, Foxy Grandpa," announced Bobby as we stood near the whale where the men were working. "I saw a man measure him this morning. And he said he must weigh over a hundred tons."

"Whew!" I gasped. "He is certainly a whale of a whale, isn't he?"

Then came the interesting part. The head of the whale was opened and then what do you think those fishermen did? They started to bail out the whale's head! Bucket after bucket of clear fluid they dipped out of the great receptacle which was encased in his head. And there were hundreds of buckets.

As soon as the oil was all out of the head what it was used for was explained to us. It turned into a grease like substance.

Would you believe it, they took out over two tons of this "head matter," as the whalers called the fluid? Yes, sir. Two tons!

"What is that for in the whale's head?" asked Bobby.

"They are not sure, Bobby," I replied. "But it is believed that the reservoir filled with fluid acts as a buoy to bring the whale more easily to the surface when he wants to come up for air."

"Imagine carrying two tons around in your head," gasped the boy. "What do you think of that, Bunny?"

"All I can say is," said Bunny, "that it must be a big relief to a whale gets a headache."

GUIDING THE CHILD

By Lucy Lowell

THE father of the misguided boy who confessed to stealing money because needs of jewelry did not go the right things to his mother, ordered a gown.

This is what scores of you readers are writing me. A letter from a correspondent in Albany, N. Y., states that the father's action does not seem totally surprising.

Now, when most of us are living on a budget, where does "extra" money without their parents' knowledge. Not that their motives show special interest in money. The children spend their time, like themselves, in getting occupied with those things of interest.

I wonder if the parents of the nine-year-old boy who stole the jewelry think it worth while to have family prayers? Have they ever told him about that? Does he know that God is love?

"A busy mother doesn't always the time to give her children religious training. But why can't an hour or two be devoted to it in the public schools? Surely it is as important to develop the spiritual and moral side of children as it is the mental and physical. The fact there are many strong reasons why the schools need not interfere, since the difference between right and wrong is the same in all forms of religion.

Would more careful religious training keep our boys and girls out of trouble?

Personally, I do not believe the responsibility for anything so vital as religious training should be passed along to the public schools.

If religious training means saving the souls of children, it is the duty of parents to give it themselves, even if they must drop everything else to do it.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

EVELYN sat on a mossy ledge in the Deadwater Ex. Yon. the bride, doesn't think she ought to go away.

Evelyn's mother told me that Evelyn was frail before they were married. Poor woman! They ought not to let a girl go off for a long rest and honeymoon especially for the first year. Of course, you realize, dear, of course, that would have to be very careful of the food.

They promised to be very careful. Evelyn was the darling of her heart. And he has done his best to keep that promise.

But I guess the honeymoon's over. The mistake must be finished and the fat man. Maybe.

Anyway, I'm anxious to know if the bride's mother died during the honeymoon, and left Evelyn to remember all the tasks for a week.

Pretty Strenuous.

Things were pretty strenuous for a month and Tony grieved over Evelyn's weakness as much as she did. But now, when Evelyn insists that she is having a luscious breakdown and wouldn't MUST leave him, his wife just smiles and goes on to the next. Maybe he's some intuitive husband. You think?

I don't see it. He is probably "the dutiful husband" that he always has been, generously giving his wife what you call "their own way" and you generally think it's the right way. But I don't see how I can personally blame him.

"You think me cruel," he said to the doctor when the doctor was trying to persuade him to call in a second opinion.

"Yes, that's what I think," the doctor replied. "Preventing her from getting the best medical advice. I consider such cruelty criminal."

"Then I'll be criminal," Tony said. "But if you are right, I'll be criminal for the rest of my life. I'll never have a moment's peace. But you are wrong. I'm sure you are wrong. I'm sure she'll get well. She always has. And I'm not going to call in another doctor to frighten her. I'm not going to do it. That's all."

Breakdowns Rare.

Nervous breakdowns are not a new thing. Shakespeare and books for the bedroom and write a poem about it. Some men are not. Two men's wives are not. Some men are not. A wonderful leader. Don't I? And only one person. Evelyn. Only someone else does or does not.

I've always thought there was a lot of nonsense about nervous breakdowns being due to overwork. Some people do indeed work so hard that they are ill. But most of us work because we're ill. Moreover, I'm sure that the nervous breakdown is one of the most tragic things that can possibly happen to a human being. And I'm positive. BUT THAT IS ALSO ONE OF THE RAREST THINGS THAT CAN HAPPEN. Three times now I've consulted specialists about nervous cases, at least ninety times in the course of my professional career. And in only one of those cases was there any real, genuine, undeniable, discouraging grief. The rest were just people who were tired, or bored, or needed encouragement or sympathy. They didn't need sleep, or drugs, or operations. They needed a friend. And they got one. Or they didn't get one. Or they got one and hated to be seen in public. The thing was very annoying and nothing I tried gave me any relief. A friend recommended your Blood Ointment and I bought some at once. The first application gave relief, but I continued using it for a few days after everything disappeared and the skin was completely cured. I can say I have great faith in "Cuticura for skin disorders." (Signed) J. I. Setterman.

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN

VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

ALL EAST WILL HEAR COOLIDGE

When President Calvin Coolidge delivers his address on Cambridge Common this afternoon, radio fans throughout the entire East will be able to hear what will perhaps be the only address the nation's Chief Executive will make this summer.

WEEI has made extensive preparations to pick up every detail of the elaborate celebration planned by the City of Cambridge to mark the 150th Anniversary of Washington's taking command of the Continental armies.

WEEI will go on the air at 2:15 o'clock with Walter Myers at the microphone in the reviewing stand on Cambridge Common, describing in detail the crowds and the color of the entire gorgeous spectacle.

As soon as the head of the parade, which city officials of Cambridge say is one of the biggest ever held in Greater Boston, comes before the reviewing stand, President Coolidge with Mrs. Coolidge, and the Presidential Staff, will leave the line of march and take seats in the large reviewing stand, where they will watch the procession.

The marching troops, the elaborate floats, the delegations from fraternal orders, will be described for the radio listeners-in and, of course, the music of the many bands as they pass before the President will be picked up by WEEI's microphone.

Immediately at the end of the parade, the Presidential party will be escorted to the large speakers' stand on the site of the famous Washington elm, and from that point will listen to the music of all the school children of Cambridge, who are to sing under the direction of John B. Whoriskey, director of music in the Cambridge public schools.

After this, comes the presentation of the elaborate pageant, written and directed by T. Harrison Cummings, librarian of the Cambridge Public Library and a recognized authority on the early colonial history of the University City. Mr. Cummings has cooperated to the fullest extent with WEEI, furnishing Walter Meyers with a brief, complete description and details of this pageant which assures listeners-in of the best kind of a picture story of this spectacle.

The action of the pageant is to be portrayed by troops of the 101st Calvary and will be fully described for radio enthusiasts.

Following the pageant, Mayor Edward Quinn of Cambridge will sound the keynote of this great day in Cambridge history and will then introduce President Calvin Coolidge.

The President's address will bring the Cambridge celebration to a close.
